OHIO OFFICIAL ACTS TO END DEADLOCK

Governor Invites Steel
Union, Producers To Confer in Effort To Stop Needless Bloodshed

By the Associated Press.
Ohio Governor Martin L. Davey's summons of opposing steel strike chiefs to a conference and the proposal of Senator Royal S. Copeland, Democrat, New York, for a broad Senate investigation of the nation's mounting labor troubles highlighted yesterday's tide of industrial developments.

Citing the "grave possibilities" in the strike, the Governor called officials of Republic Steel Corporation and Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company and Steel Workers' Organizing Committee leaders to Columbus Friday with the admonition:

"You can not refrain from fair discussion on the problem around the conference table."

The walkout, keeping 73,000 steel workers idle, entered its third week last night.

Power Strike Ends.
Meanwhile an early settlement was reached in a power strike that paralyzed the highly industrialized Saginaw valley of Michigan, for 15 hours held nearly 100,000 wage earners idle and left 400,000 residents of 192 communities without adequate electrical facilities.

The strikers, numbering slightly more than 100, defied their leadership and the pleas of Governor Frank Murphy for hours after a settlement was reached in Washington by John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

A similar strike last month continued for nine hours.

Governor Murphy, who was in Pittsburgh yesterday, planned a hasty return to the Michigan capital to attempt settlement of the dispute at the Newton Steel Company mill at Monroe, Mich. Officials of the plant, a Republic subsidiary, decided to defer reopening until 4 p. m., today.

Pickets Mobilize.
Earlier the opening was set for 8 a. m., with union forces and law agencies mobilizing in anticipation. More than 150 officers were held in readiness. CIO leaders said "8,000 to 10,000" men would come from the Detroit area to reinforce the Monroe pickets.

Elsewhere on the perturbed labor front, centering mostly about the Great Lakes and the eastern seaboard, were these developments:

The SWOC filed a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board charging the Inland Steel Corporation had violated the law.

Tanks and Troops Halt Belgian Vets' Protests

BRUSSELS, June 9. — (AP) — Mounted troops and tanks were thrown about Belgian parliament building tonight after angry war veterans had demonstrated against a proposal before the senate which would grant amnesty to all wartime prisoners.

Four hundred veterans threw their decorations on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in protest against the measure.

A delegation of former service men called on the speaker of the senate and swore to kill any "traitor" who profited by such amnesty. They left only after they were told the measure would not come up for a vote today.

Hollywood Doors To Open For Some Talented Atlantan

Screen Tests Will Be Given Discoveries in Talent Hunt for Constitution Readers; One Public Votes Best Will Get Movie City Whirl.

Hollywood is coming to Atlanta. Here in the Gate City may be obtained the film opportunity for which thousands of ambitious young men, women and children have traveled thousands of miles after planning, stinging and making sacrifices.

Screen tests and a chance for fame in the movies are awaiting readers of The Constitution. There are no strings attached. There are no fees to pay.

Expert in Charge.
In conjunction with Visagraphic Film Corporation of Atlanta, Astral Productions of Hollywood and Radio Station WATL, The Constitution will make screen tests of talented Atlantans under the personal supervision and direction of C. T. Burgess, talent scout and executive manager of Astral Productions, and Jack Marco, Hollywood director and actor.

The tests will be viewed by thousands of Atlantans on the screen of the Rialto theater for a full week and the films also will be shown at five of the Bach theaters. The tests then will be sent to Hollywood for viewing by executives of the major film corporations.

Hollywood is constantly on the lookout for fresh talent. Directors and producers will watch the films with eager eyes. They will be seeking new finds who possess that intangible something which leads to stardom.

That in itself should be the chance of a lifetime, but the operating agencies are going further than that. The Atlanta audiences will select the most talented man, woman or child in the film and the winner will be given a brilliant trip to Hollywood by American Airlines flagship sleeper plane.

Sponsor in Hollywood.
Once there, the victor will be presented at the major film studios by Arthur Klein, Ltd., one of the best known artist agencies. There will be provided a round of activities and residence at the exclusive Chancellors hotel. There, will be accorded all the privileges of the famous Ambassador hotel.

The Atlanta contest winner will be presented at the Coconut Grove by Edward Arnold, the film star. There will be dining at the Beverly Hills, Vine street and Los Angeles Brown Derby, rendezvous of the stars.

There will be several days at the famous El Mirador at Palm Springs in the land of the desert.

TAX DODGING LIST MAY BE PUBLICIZED

Proposed Measure Would Allow Assorted Evaders
To Defend Themselves.

WASHINGTON, June 9. — (AP) — Congressional leaders predicted tonight that the first move of a proposed investigating committee will be to make public the names of wealthy persons accused by President Roosevelt of tax evasion and avoidance.

The leaders said they expect these names then will be given an opportunity to appear before the committee and defend themselves.

President Roosevelt sent Congress a list of alleged evaders and avoidances recently, but did not name the persons involved.

Chairman Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, of the senate finance committee, announced today that he will ask the senate to agree to changes made by the house in a resolution ordering the investigation.

(The house amendments would prevent the proposed investigating committee of senators and representatives from empowering an agent to make public results of secret investigations. They would require the committee itself to decide in every case whether publicity should be given.)

Early Inquiry Seen.
After Harrison's announcement, leaders forecast that the senate would complete congressional action authorizing the investigation tomorrow. This would permit the inquiry to begin next week.

White House officials announced that the inquiry resolution passed by the house is acceptable to DAKAR, SENEGAL, French West Africa, June 9. — I discovered today that the airport at St. Louis, Senegal, was the beginning of several famous flights, including those of De Gaulle, Coste and the late Joseph Le Brie, and is a rendezvous of well-known flyers. It is a very friendly place.

I will not soon forget the experience of circling a field on a strange continent and seeing huts such as are in children's illustrated geographies. I was impressed with the stateliness of the natives. Here the flowing garments that both men and women wear accentuate their proud bearing.

The Dakar airport is excellent, picturesquely situated on a jutting point of land, with the pink city near by. Before starting eastward overland I am having a periodic check made of the faithful plane and engines. Equipment which serves so well deserves good care. I am writing this in the hangar while the mechanics check every inch of the plane.

FREE STATE UNDER LEAGUE OF NATIONS

German Dictator To Speak in Medieval Castle in Marienburg, Once
Seat of Teutonic Knights

MARIENWERDER, East Prussia, June 8. — (AP) — Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler is scheduled to address 600 of his oldest and trusted followers on Polish frontier problems here on June 19.

Dramatically he has chosen for his important party conference this town of 14,000 inhabitants which borders on the Free State of Danzig, once Polish and once German and governed since the World War under League of Nations supervision.

He will speak in the medieval castle of Marienburg, once the seat of the Teutonic knights who conquered the little Danzig six centuries ago — (and who later suffered crushing defeat at the hands of a Polish king).

Symbolic Setting.
The setting will be symbolic reminder of the Nazi theory that national socialism is a crusade as was that of the knights of old, and the Nazis are members of an order.

Nazi leaders have emphasized strongly that the party is comparable to the old Teutonic order, which had its origin in the 12th century crusades. And the emphasis has been carried to the point where future leaders of Nazism are being trained in old castles of the order, erected in medieval style but with modern conveniences.

Great secrecy cloaks details of the conference of Nazi party chiefs, but there are some who believe that Hitler may take the day for a "surprise Saturday" announcement.

COUNTY OFFICIALS DISCLAIM SECRECY

Longino and Ragsdale
Issue Public Statement
Explaining Adjustments

Salary adjustments to certain county employees in the lowest pay brackets have been agreed upon while commissioners were riding over the county to visit public institutions but no secret meetings have been held, two board members said in a public statement yesterday.

The statement was issued by Commissioners J. A. Ragsdale and George F. Longino after it was revealed Monday that salary raises for 17 employees, which had not been discussed in open meeting June 2, were included in the rough draft of minutes for that session.

Commissioners' Statement.

Huge Range Topped On Youth in Scuffle

Tussling over possession of a discarded electric range, James Tullanda, 15, of 701 D'Alvigny street, suffered a badly lacerated right arm when his opponent, a negro boy, pushed the 200-pound range upon him at about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon on a lot at Julian and D'Alvigny street.

Tullanda was admitted to Grady hospital. The negro boy fled. M. A. Brown, Georgia Power Company employee, who had placed the range on the lot, reported the incident to police. He aided the injured boy by lifting the range.

REFUSAL TO WORK JAILS BIBB NEGRO

'Gang or Job' Threat Is Carried Out as Farmer
Accuses Field Worker.

MACON, Ga., June 9. — (AP) — Sheriff's deputies late this afternoon charged a negro relief worker with vagrancy and held him in Bibb county jail for trial in city court.

The action was the first following an announcement by Sheriff James R. Hicks Jr., Tuesday that all able-bodied relief workers who refuse private employment will be prosecuted as vagrants.

Sheriff Hicks left here for North Carolina this morning, but is expected to return here tomorrow.

The first defendant was listed as Clifford Jackson, middle-aged negro.

Farmer's Complaint.
Jackson was arrested in Unionville by Deputies W. H. Bowden and Roman Riley on complaint of J. A. Young, operator of a farm near here.

Deputy Bowden said Mr. Young reported to sheriff's office that he gave Jackson employment on his farm Tuesday. Today, Mr. Young said, he went by Jackson's home to pick him up to take him back to work, and the negro refused to go, saying he was on the relief rolls.

"He said they couldn't make him work," Mr. Young said tonight, "and that he wanted to get back on relief rolls, for which he had not worked during the past week, then I called officers to see what they could do about it."

"This relief work," the farmer explained, "has got the men so

Rivers in Seclusion On Eve of Operation

Governor Rivers was in seclusion at the Crawford W. Long hospital last night preparing for a kidney operation this morning.

The chief executive's physicians, Drs. Ballenger, Elder and McDonald, declared that it would not be determined definitely until today if the operation is to be performed.

"Whether or not the Governor will undergo an operation will be determined tomorrow," a statement from the physicians said. "At any rate, he cannot see visitors and is being permitted to confer with his secretary, Mr. Musgrove, for only a few minutes a day. The Governor has been working strenuously for months and he must have absolute rest and quiet."

Although the journey depends on his physical condition, it was understood that the Governor is still planning a trip to the Pacific coast for the national convention of the Woodmen of the World late this month.

WETS TOP '35 VOTE IN FULTON, DEKALB

Overwhelming Majority of Two Years Ago Beaten; Amendments Romp.

Fulton and DeKalb county voters polled a larger majority for repeal Tuesday than they did in 1935 and passed Governor Rivers' New Deal amendments for Georgia by overwhelming majorities, official tabulations of votes disclosed yesterday.

Fulton voted 14,410 for repeal and 7,578 against, while DeKalb cast 3,375 for to 2,645 against. The total majority in the two counties for repeal Tuesday was 7,562 as against 6,437 in 1935.

In 1935 Fulton polled 9,919 for repeal and 4,451 against, while DeKalb gave repeat 2,903 votes to 1,934 against. The 1935 Fulton majority to repeal was 5,468 and DeKalb's was 969. Fulton's majority in Tuesday's referendum was 6,832 and DeKalb's was 730.

Senate District Voted.
Fulton listed 15,102 for passage of Amendment No. 14 providing a separate senatorial district for Fulton county and 5,822 were polled against it. DeKalb gave the same amendment 3,497 for to 2,220 against.

No. 22, to permit the city of Atlanta to refund bonds and make loans got 14,211 for to 6,510 against in Fulton and 3,697 for to 1,952 against in DeKalb.

Escape Artist Is Linked by Police In Gainesville Girl's Kidnap Story

A comely 18-year-old blond girl of Gainesville, Ga., yesterday told Fulton county police a weird story of being kidnapped and forced to join in a filling station holdup before finally escaping from her captors.

Chester Turner, brother of Forrest Turner, well-known escape artist, was believed by police to be one of the kidnappers. He escaped from the Cherokee county chain gang recently. The other abductor is believed to be Bill Baker, also an escapee, who was seen with Turner near Hapeville recently.

Forced Into Car.
The girl, Miss Verline Stargel, of a Davis street address, Gainesville, told county officers that she was walking near her home about 9 o'clock Tuesday night when a car drove along side her and two men, one brandishing a pistol, forced her into the machine.

Hurriedly leaving Gainesville, the girl said her captors headed for Flowery Branch and thence to Atlanta, using her as a blind.

Early yesterday morning the

SOCIAL SECURITY PROVISIONS PASS

Vast Constitutional Program Placed Into Effect
by Result of State-Wide
Referendum on Issues.

For the second time in two years Georgia has voted to retain its 23-year-old bone dry law. Complete, though, unofficial figures from Tuesday's general election last night showed that the proposal for repeal of the law had been defeated by 8,277 votes, more than 8,000 greater than the majority given prohibition two years ago.

The vote:
For repeal 94,652; against repeal 102,929.

In the same election, Georgians gave a heavy majority to 28 constitutional amendments sponsored by Georgia's pro-Roosevelt Governor, Rivers, and opposed by the state's anti-New Deal ex-Governor, Eugene Talmadge.

Strife End Urged.
As the extent of the victory for the amendments became definite, Governor Rivers issued a statement urging that all "strife and factionalism" be eliminated and former Governor Talmadge, who headed the campaign in opposition to the program immediately issued a statement declaring the Rivers program "must be given a fair trial."

Talmadge added that the present "state administration should be given an opportunity to carry out its promises."

Talmadge conceded the adoption of the amendments, and Marvin Griffin, of Bainbridge, chairman of the Georgia Alcoholic Control Association, said "the anti-repeal forces have scored another victory."

Rivers advocated adoption of the amendments to "put Georgia in line with Roosevelt" on old age pensions and other phases of the social security program. Talmadge urged their defeat, saying they would increase taxes and "perpetuate the capital crowd in office." Rivers took no stand on repeal, but Talmadge opposed it.

Total Vote Greater.
The vote on repeal was greater than in the 1935 referendum when repeal was defeated 82,134 to 81,881. The total vote in 1935 was 194,017. This year's vote was 197,581.

The 1937 majority for anti-repealists was 8,277, or 32 times greater than the 243 majority in 1935.

In the 1935, although the proposal to legalize whisky and other hard liquors was defeated, Georgians amended the prohibition law

BRITISH DOMINIONS PREPARE TO CLAIM ANTARCTIC LANDS

Will Dispute United States,
Three Other Nations for Mineral Stores.

LONDON, June 9.—(UP)—Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand are preparing to make formal demands for sovereignty over a vast area of the antarctic in opposition to discovery claims by the United States and three other nations, it was revealed tonight.

The action was mapped by a special subcommittee on "polar questions" of the British Imperial Conference. Existence of the subcommittee was not revealed until today when its recommendations were submitted to the empire delegates.

The empire dominions are anxious to record a strong claim to the immense mineral stores believed to lie beneath the ice and snow of the antarctic continent. Ownership of the disputed areas lies between the units of the British empire, the United States, Argentina, France and Norway.

Lincoln Ellsworth in November and December, 1935, flew over a large area of previously undiscovered antarctic land and claimed for the United States a wedge-shaped section of about 350,000 square miles, extending from longitude 80 degrees to 120 degrees west and from the coast line to the south pole.

sun. There the winner will mingle with men and women whose names are in the lights of New York and Chicago and known at the cross-roads of the world. The return trip to Atlanta again will be by American airline flagship plane.

Others Have Chance.
But not only the winning contestant will have an opportunity for a Hollywood career. All others who reveal sufficient promise to be included in the tests—and there will be at least 40 or 50 of them—will have splendid chances. The Hollywood executives will see the screen tests of each player. The time to make application is now, through The Constitution. The letter should be addressed: "The Talent Scout," "The Atlanta Constitution." Applicants, where possible, should include a recent photograph. The full name and address must be given. Age is not essential, but it should be given with a view toward guiding the director in deciding on the type of part most suitable for the applicant. Although acting experience is not necessary, mention may be made in the application of any amateur roles in which the applicant has participated. If the applicant feels that he or she has a particular talent for a specialized type of role, this should also be mentioned.

Out-of-town residents are eligible to participate, but they are required to bear their own expenses in making the trip to Atlanta and in maintaining themselves during their stay here.

Thorough Rehearsals.
Candidates will be rehearsed thoroughly in their parts by Mr. Marco before the screen tests are actually "shot," and since the tests will be made with sound, proper diction also will be taught. Marco, in addition to his wide experience as a director, is well known as an actor. He has been leading man for Ethel Barrymore, Fritz Scheff, Sally Rand, Lupe Velez and many others.

Applicants will be notified when to appear for rehearsals, which are expected to last two or three weeks. "Shooting" will then be done as rapidly as possible. A week will be required for processing, editing and printing film, and the picture will then have its premiere in Atlanta.

Applications for tests may be made by mail only. No applicant will be considered until instructed to report for rehearsals.

Atlantans now have an opportunity which may come only once for screen fame. The only requirement for success is ability—either present or latent.

Applications are now in order.

EASTERN STAR NAMES
NEW STATE OFFICERS

MACON, Ga., June 9.—(P)—Mrs. Bessie Cashman, of Pooler, was elected worthy grand matron of the Georgia Grand Chapter, Order of Eastern Star at the state convention here today.

Other new officers include Miss Leslie Ulmer, of Valdosta, associate grand matron, and J. B. Russell, of Fitzgerald, worthy grand patron.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 9. (P)—The Association of Surgeons of the Southern Railway System today elected Dr. W. S. Austin, of Knoxville, Tenn., its president. New Orleans was selected for the 1938 convention.

Screen Test? It's Simple, Fun Too, Says Girl After Trial by Camera

Furthermore, Going Up for Judgment Is Fascinating and Way Smoothed Perfectly, by Aid of Director Who Coaches Candidates Thoroughly.

By NAN HALL.

Anybody can take a screen test. I know, because I took one yesterday morning, and it's as easy as sipping one's afternoon tea, and much more fascinating.

So, girls and boys, if you plan to enter The Constitution's screen test contest, don't be alarmed at the prospect of facing movie cameras. After all it may lead to a real career in Hollywood.

The city editor asked me to take a test, so I would be able to tell you all about it, just how it feels, and what you have to go through. Let's begin at the beginning.

That Sinking Feeling.
There was a little bit of sinking feeling, a flurry of excitement, I'll admit. I should have taken more time with my hair that morning; I would be too frightened to speak into the microphone, but after all if Shirley Temple can go through with it, I supposed I could too.

Jack Marco, a movie director from the west coast, greeted me in the studio of the Visigraphic Film Corporation of Atlanta. His frank, pleasant smile reassured me that maybe things to come wouldn't be so bad after all. Nor were they.

The director talked to me quietly, frankly. I was told that there was nothing to dread; that he would show me exactly what to do. "All you have to do is to follow directions," he said. "I will tell you what to say, and how to say it."

That sounded reassuring, and my self confidence was restored. Anyone can follow directions, I knew, so since that was all there was to it, I would forget my fears, and have a good time.

Out of a pile of manuscripts which reminded me of reports of the amount of the original paper on which Margaret Mitchell wrote "Gone With the Wind," Mr. Marco chose one which he thought would suit me.

Coached by Director.
First he read the play. For the time being I forgot that I was going to take a screen test. In my mind I was the heroine of that story. He then chose the scenes which we were to use, and coached me in my part.

Now here comes the hard work, I thought; I'm going to have to learn a lot of lines, and maybe I won't say them right. But a surprise awaited me, for the director repeated the lines with the proper inflection, and all I did was to say them after him in just the same tone.

He rehearsed me over and over, until I knew them "by heart." In fact, I felt as though those words were mine, and that I had been knowing them all my life.

Now we were ready for "make-up." I had expected a lot of grease paint, and rouge, and powder; but Mr. Marco said, "The art of make-up is to use it sparingly. The trend is more and more toward naturalness, with certain features brought out, or others toned down."

The great moment had come, the cameraman was ready, the sound technician had his ear phones on. What seemed like a hundred lights were turned full force upon me. Over my head hung a black cylinder which I knew was the microphone, and into which I would soon send my voice. But so carefully had I been coached, that I sat there fully composed, or should I say nearly composed?

"Camera!"
We were ready to shoot. In a mild, but commanding voice, Mr. Marco said the magic word "Camera!"

I suppose that the cameraman took a record, but all I remember is that a voice was saying words which had meaning, and that the voice was my voice, and the words so familiar to me that I could not have forgotten them if I had tried, which I didn't. Then it was all over, and the director called out, "Cut." And that was that.

So the lucky entrants in the screen talent contest who get as far as the testing eye of the camera, will find that they have been so thoroughly prepared that they will face the camera with the ease and poise of a Joan Crawford or a Clark Gable.

county police headquarters announced last night. Before she left she made a sworn statement to the solicitor general. Its contents were not revealed.

Immediately after being notified of the kidnapping by Atlanta officers, Sheriff Arthur Bell, of Hall county, began an investigation there.

The girl's family came to Gainesville from Greenville, S. C., about a year ago, he said, but recently had moved to a farm outside the city.

Miss Stargel told the officers her abductors told her they were going to change cars as "soon as possible" as the one in which they were riding "was hot."

County officers searched the county all day yesterday for trace of the two men but found none.

ments in the compensation of certain of the Fulton county employees in the lower brackets. Certain adjustments were completed last January but official action along this line was withheld and the matter has been considered from time to time until today.

over the county, at the various county institutions, it was agreed that a certain employee or employees would receive and were entitled to a small increase in compensation. When the commissioners agreed on the adjustment of any particular employee's salary the clerk of the board of commissioners was so notified. The board of commissioners has held no secret meetings and the only occasion that could be construed as such a meeting was the commissioners were at lunch a few days ago and one of the heads of a department in the court house, requested that he be allowed to have lunch at the same time to discuss three or four adjustments in his office, so this department head had lunch with the commissioners. We think the employees of Fulton county realize that there will be no general increase in salaries in the county, but in fairness to the employees, it is necessary from time to time to make small adjustments in the compensation paid the employees in the lower brackets. There is nothing unusual in the increases that are now under contemplation; a careful investigation of the new compensation paid the employees affected will disclose that they are not overpaid and are entitled to the compensation that we have fixed for them.

Further Adjustments.
The members of the board have informally discussed slight adjustments in the compensation paid other employees of the county and from time to time it is expected that slight adjustments will be made in the compensation paid the lower bracket employees. "The board of county commissioners wishes to get to the public the fact that the county board has not carried on any secret or private meetings. Very frequently, we have business to discuss that should be of an executive nature, but we always invite the press, who are the representatives of the public, so to speak, into these

COURT COMPROMISE ASSAILED BY GRANGE

Organization Urges Congress To Defeat Proposal Asked by F. D. R.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(P)—The National Grange issued a statement tonight opposing any compromise on the Roosevelt bill to reorganize the supreme court. "There should be no thought of compromise," it said, "because there can be no honorable grounds for compromise between right and wrong."

"If it is wrong to add five or six additional justices to the supreme court for the purpose of influencing its decisions, then it is just as wrong in principle to add two or any other number of justices with this end in view."

It urged that congress defeat the court bill and adjourn.

HARRIMAN IS ORDERED TO PAY BANK $287,484

NEW YORK, June 9.—(P)—Joseph W. Harriman, released from prison last August 27 after serving about two years for falsifying accounts of the defunct Harriman National Bank he headed, was ordered today to pay $287,484.48 to the bank's receiver.

Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy ruled the amount was due as balance of a promissory note for $544,668.53.

PHYSICIANS REJECT PROPOSAL TO ASK U. S. INDIGENT FUND

New York Plan Would Have Provided for Care of Sick Among Poor.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 9.—(AP)—The house of delegates of the American Medical Association today rejected a proposal of its New York state delegation for government funds for medical care of the poor, but adopted, unanimously, a substitute with an enabling act by which organized medical bodies are authorized to co-operate with

Nazi Salad Dressing Hit by Oil Shortage

BERLIN, June 9.—(AP)—Germany's cooking oil shortage struck the salad dressing industry today.

An official order, effective July 1, subjects oils and fats used for making mayonnaise dressing, sauces and salads to special license provisions.

The government to settle this and other medical problems. Delegates coming out of the secret session which adopted this proposal were divided in opinion. Some said the letter of the New York idea had been rejected but the spirit had been adopted. Come New Yorkers said they had received "half a loaf."

All agreed that the action was progressive. The New York proposal recommended that public funds be made available to existing hospitals rendering service to the medically indigent. The substitute today omitted this provision.

It declared that "the available evidence indicates that today throughout the United States the indigent are being given a high quality of medical care and medical service."

Today's resolution, for the third time this week, affirmed official medical support for an independent, federal health bureau. The resolution said this bureau would not increase present expense, but would eliminate some duplications.

car. It took a long time for her to do that. There was something the matter with her knees. They wouldn't bend. And she really had very little use of her legs. Stabbing Nightmare. She kept hoping that in a moment she'd wake and find it was a horrible nightmare. But it wasn't.

She got out of the car somehow. And crawling about she found a man, lying still alongside the road. It was her husband. He was so still. And his breathing was so slow and labored something told her he was dying.

She found Winford Brock. He

Sisters Are Reunited Here After Years of Separation

too, was unconscious. Her knees and hands hurt terribly. But she kept crawling there, pulling at torn pieces of the car, pulling at bushes.

The baby had to be there somehow. All the while she was screaming, praying out loud, asking God and asking some man or woman or child to come along the road and help her find the baby and help them all before they all died.

Screams Ebb. After a while she knew she could hardly hear her own screams.

She started crawling. Someone had to help find the baby. And no one came. And so she went for it. She crawled away from the wreckage of the automobile which smelled of gasoline and torn leather and death. And she went down the road.

She couldn't cry any more. And she couldn't scream. She tried to stand but she couldn't. The knees wouldn't let her. And so she crawled, dragging her body along the Lawrenceville road. She had an idea it must be after midnight. It must have been sometime Wednesday morning. And it was. But whatever time it was, no one came to help.

Voices Ebb. Inch by inch she crawled. Her breath sobbed in her throat. She remembers that because she tried to scream and couldn't. There was just her breath that sobbed. She remembers that at last she closed her eyes to the agony of herself and her mind and kept crawling. Years seemed to pass. It seemed hours and hours since the crash and the pain had waked her and she had felt for the baby and couldn't find her.

It was her first baby. And her only baby. At last there was a farmhouse. It was getting a bit lighter then. Somewhere beyond the horizon the lazy earth was getting ready to turn up the sun. They heard her at last. "Please... My Baby." "Find my baby, please, please find my baby," she said to the startled ones at the door. They took her in and washed away some of the blood and the dirt. And they waited while an ambulance was called.

She had crawled a half-mile on broken knees; on knees in which the bones were fractured. She had crawled 2,640 feet a few inches at a time with her mind dozed and terror and fear and despair beating at her brain.

The ambulance came at last. They found Mary Jo, as they feared, dead in a field across from the road and the wrecked car; tossed 25 feet when the car swerved from the road, slid along the crest of a ditch until it struck a jutting rock to be overturned and demolished.

Father Dead. Mary Jo and her father had been thrown through the top of the car. She was dead when they found her. Her little life which had spanned but one month, was ended instantly, doctors believed.

The husband and father lived only a few minutes after reaching Emory hospital. He was dying when she had found him and beyond the reach of surgeons or medicine. Winford Brock received only minor injuries.

While officials investigate the accident which early Wednesday morning added one more chapter

Four Sisters, Together Once Again, To Spend Time Chatting, Visiting

66-Year-Old Woman Journeys From Duncan, Oklahoma, To Rejoin Sisters She Hasn't Seen Since Christmas, 1904.

Thirty-four years of separation from her three sisters ended here last night for Mrs. Reece Ball. At 8:40 o'clock Mrs. Ball stepped off a train in the Terminal station after traveling from Duncan, Okla., into the waiting arms of her sisters and a group of nieces, nephews and grandchildren.

"It was a long, hard trip for a woman my age, but it has already been worth it," said Mrs. Ball, who is 66, after disengaging herself from her sisters' embraces. Two Atlantas. The sisters are Mrs. Andrew Green, 57, of Canton, Ga.; Mrs. William A. Hester, 53, and Mrs. Charles Stradley, 59, both of Atlanta. They were on hand in their "Sunday best" to greet Mrs. Ball, who has not been back to her old home since a visit during the Christmas season of 1904. The four sisters are daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Scoggins, of Atlanta, and all were born here. Lorena (Mrs. Hester) has been a lifetime resident of Atlanta, and now lives at 808 Marietta street. Lula (Mrs. Stradley) has also spent her life in Atlanta, now residing at 588 North avenue.

Jessie (Mrs. Green) married 30 years ago and went to Canton with her husband, and has been living there since. She and the two Atlanta sisters have kept in close touch with each other, however, and exchange visits frequently.

Married 42 Years Ago. Ruth (Mrs. Ball) was the one who put so many miles between herself and the rest of her family. She married 42 years ago and moved to Duncan and has paid only one visit to Atlanta, that of Christmas, 1904.

After she returned to Oklahoma from the visit, she found affairs there were too pressing to allow her any more vacations, for she had a house to keep and two sons to rear, both of whom later were to study for the ministry and fill prominent Oklahoma pulpits.

Now, however, her duties have relaxed enough to allow her this visit, which the sisters expect to spend in "chatting over old times." There will be plenty of other things to do, too, and old threads to pick up, for the three who stayed in Georgia have children and even grandchildren that Mrs. Ball has never seen.

They had been to visit relatives in Mississippi. And Reynolds was driving on through the night, seeking to reach Greenville in time to report for work at a drugstore there.

Mrs. Reynolds' condition is reported as "fair." The shock and the injuries and the exhaustion brought on by her efforts have left her weak and lacking in resistance.

Doctors believe she will live. Brock's condition is not serious although he is painfully injured. She is 21 years old. Nurses, knowing her story, seek to do things for her. The story of her courage has thrilled them as few things have. And the tragedy which attended it has depressed them as few tragedies.

SOUTHERN FARMERS DRAFT LEGISLATION

Five-Point Program Adopted With View to Benefiting Agriculture.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP)—The Association of Southern Commissioners of Agriculture announced today the adoption of resolutions urging legislative and economic action to benefit southern agriculture.

One resolution praised the national administration for giving southern farmers "monetary relief from the old gold standard," and asked it to carry out the following program:

1. Establish lower or reciprocal tariffs to increase foreign demand for American commodities.
2. Remove 12-cent loan cotton from the market until March, 1938.
3. Provide "an adequate currency and credit system" to improve farm prices.
4. Issue basic currency against "sterile gold" to restore the price level to the 1926 level.
5. Take regulation of money value "out of private control and restore it to congress."

Scheduled Duel Halted in France

PARIS, Thursday, June 10.—(UP)—Minister of Justice Marc Rucart today forbade Georges Verne, Valence City prosecutor and grandson of the novelist Jules Verne, to answer the challenge of Jean Charles LeGrand to fight a duel.

LeGrand, famous criminal attorney, challenged Verne because he said Verne insulted him. He chose former Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin and Georges London, newspaperman, for his seconds.

"I'M PROUD WE GOT OUT OF THE 'ALL THREE' CLASS!"

"OUR NEW NASH IS SO MUCH BIGGER -- AND IT COST ONLY A FEW DOLLARS MORE * THAN THOSE SMALLER CARS"

We'd like to thank Mr. E. Novol of Chicago for the following expression... read what he says!

"Lots of people take their automobiles for granted. But not me. I want to know what's under the hood. I'd like to pay Nash this compliment—the Nash LaFayette '400' is one of the best engineered cars today. That '400' engine is a 'sweetheart.' Those LARGER hydraulic brakes will save me many a denied fender. That big roomy body is a joy to our whole family! I'm proud of my new Nash... it's a grand automobile!"

We hope that some of you people will look at the Nash LaFayette "400". It's a great big 117-inch wheelbase car. You get a remarkably economical 90 horsepower six cylinder engine. You get larger hydraulic brakes, stronger all steel body. More room. More comfort. Come in. Let us show you all the extra value Nash offers—for just a few dollars more than those "All Three" cars cost. See the new Nash Ambassador Six and Eight. Thrillingly beautiful. Impressingly big. We honestly believe that the Nash Ambassador models offer you every important advantage of the most expensive cars made—at an amazingly low price. See the X-Ray System at Nash showrooms. ## INCREASED TARIFF ON U. S. PRODUCTS IS SEEN BY BRITON

House of Commons Member
Says America Must Grant
Trade Concessions.

LONDON, June 9.—(P)—The house of commons today heard one of its conservative members predict higher tariffs against United States goods unless trade concessions are granted to Great Britain.

Lieutenant Colonel Leopold Stennett Amery, former first lord of the admiralty, issued the warning in which he said the United States "may have to face a substantial increase in our duties against them."

"It is impossible to get back to the gold standard as long as that great creditor nation (the United States) still is forcing its exports upon us and refusing to take an excess of imports," he declared.

He contended Britain buys more from the United States than it sells there and said any trade agreement must rectify this adverse balance.

Georgia Syrup Plea Sounded From Coast

A San Francisco woman, who said she was accustomed to good Georgia cane syrup and could not learn to like the product sold in San Francisco, wrote a plea to the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce to do something about it.

The letter, received yesterday by Slater Marshall, head of the chamber's department of information and research, asked that the Chamber of Commerce write to stores in the California city to promote the sale.

Marshall said the note was from Mrs. Adele Johnson, of 1832 Larkin street.

SWIMMING CLASSES WILL OPEN MONDAY

Red Cross Courses, Including
Life Saving, To Reach
Every Pool.

Swimming and life saving instruction by the Red Cross will get under way in the Atlanta area next Monday.

This year a morning, afternoon and night program will be carried on in all the city pools to make instruction available for small children, older children and adults at each pool.

The program for the first three weeks, beginning Monday, is as follows:

Grant Park—June 14 to July 2, 3:30 to 5:30; Monday, Wednesday and Friday; older children, adults.
June 14 to July 2, 3:30 to 4:30; Monday, Wednesday and Friday; advanced swimming, junior and senior life saving.
Oakland City—June 15 to July 13, 3:30 to 5:30; Tuesday and Thursday; older children, adults.
June 15 to July 13, 3:30 to 4:30; Tuesday and Thursday; advanced swimming, junior and senior life saving.
June 15 to July 13, 8:00 to 9:00; Tuesday and Thursday; advanced swimming and life saving.
Piedmont Park—June 14 to July 2, 3:30 to 5:30; Monday, Wednesday and Friday; children and beginners.
Madison Park—June 15 to July 13, 8:30 to 10:30; Tuesday and Thursday; children and beginners.
Moxley Park—June 14 to July 2, 7:00 to 8:00; Monday, Wednesday and Friday; adult beginners.
June 14 to July 2, 8:00 to 9:00; Monday, Wednesday and Friday; advanced swimming and life saving.

PAY RAISE VOTED FOR BANK STAFFS

C. & S. Also Announces Personnel Changes.

Pay raises for all employees and several changes in personnel in the Atlanta and Macon branches were announced yesterday by the Citizens & Southern National Bank following a board of directors' meeting.

Payment of the regular semi-annual 3 per cent dividend was voted payable to stockholders July 1. The directors also authorized payment on July 1 of a sum representing 10 per cent of the salaries of all employees, exclusive of officers, from January 1 to July 1.

Roy W. Hale was named assistant cashier of the Macon branch and George R. McKinnon was elected assistant cashier of the Marietta street branch of the Atlanta bank.

MRS. T. L. LEWIS SR. LAST RITES TODAY

Clubwoman Will Be Buried in West View.

Final rites for Mrs. Thomas L. Lewis Sr., prominent Atlanta church worker and clubwoman who died Tuesday, will be held at 11:30 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill with Drs. Ryland Knight and M. Ashby Jones officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Mrs. Lewis was 77 years old and resided at 397 Fourth street, N. E. She was president of the Atlanta Baptist Woman's Missionary Union, a charter member of the Coterie Club, and a past president of the Federation of Women's Clubs of Georgia. She was the widow of Thomas L. Lewis Sr., prominent Atlanta attorney.

GASOLINE PRICES WILL GO UP TODAY

Two Companies Announce Fuel Cost Boost.

Raise in gasoline prices from 22 to 23 cents per gallon on standard fuel and from 18 to 20 cents per gallon on third-grade fuel will become effective at Standard Oil Company stations today, it was announced yesterday. The Advance Oil Company also announced it is raising prices.

Other companies are expected to follow suit, although officials said yesterday they had received no orders as yet for price changes.

Missing Pajama Pants Intriguing Detective

The mystery of the missing pajama pants claimed the attention of police yesterday.

Mrs. A. R. Busch, of Milwaukee, wrote a letter to Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby, stating that while visiting here recently she purchased a pair of pajamas at a downtown men's shop.

When she returned to Milwaukee she discovered the "tops" were missing, but the "bottoms" were intact. She doesn't know the name of the shop where the purchase was made, and wants the police to find out.

The assignment was given Detective J. H. Smith.

AMENDMENT SWEEP CHEERS HARTSFIELD

Mayor Hails Passage as Meaning Era of Sounder Financing.

Mayor Hartsfield exulted yesterday over the passage of the constitutional amendment permitting Atlanta to refund $2,000,000 of bonds and to borrow up to 50 per cent of the estimated ad valorem tax receipts for any current year.

"This is the first time in many years that the city has been in good financial shape or at least had the prospect of being in anything like a sound fiscal condition," he said.

"The amendment will save us more than $50,000 a year in interest rates and in more advantageous prices on purchases of city supplies because of our ability to meet our bills promptly."

"I appreciate the vote of confidence the people of Atlanta and Fulton county and the state at large gave our administration. Passage of the measure is the culmination of the financial program which we inaugurated at the beginning of the administration, and means that the government of Atlanta is ready to march forward to a new era of service to its people."

"I want to say a word to the people who are now paying higher taxes. We propose to reduce taxes just as rapidly as increase in prosperity boosts city receipts to meet actual demands for services. That is to say, we will cut them down as rapidly as is consistent with sound economics. We can begin to reduce our deficit the first of the year under the law and it should be entirely wiped out within the next five years."

"To do that we must economize and must adhere to the principles of sound financing. I hope the people of Atlanta will bear with us and help us do a real job."

TENANT LOAN BILL GAINS APPROVAL

Senate Subcommittee Acts on Bankhead Measure.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(P)—A senate agriculture subcommittee voted a favorable recommendation today to a modified Bankhead farm tenant loan bill.

Under an agreement Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, reached last week with President Roosevelt, the measure would authorize $10,000,000 the first year for loans to aid tenants to purchase farm homes, $25,000,000 the second, and $50,000,000 the third year.

Bankhead's original bill called for a $50,000,000 annual outlay for 10 years. Subcommittee members predicted the full agriculture committee would approve the revised measure tomorrow.

JUST-FREED PRISONER FACES NEW CHARGES

Harry Kispagh, released yesterday from the Atlanta Federal penitentiary, spent last night in Fulton tower, unable to make $2,000 bond set by United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith for his appearance in Jackson, Miss.

Kispagh served 44 months in the prison here for postoffice robbery and federal officers said he was wanted in Mississippi to face another charge of conspiring to break and enter a postoffice in Leake county, Miss.

BABY HIPPO IN ZOO.

CHICAGO, June 9.—(P)—It's a girl at the Chicago Zoological park and the two weeks of suspense over the sex of the baby hippo was ended today. The administration was jubilant because female hippos not only are considered more beautiful but also command a higher cash value.

What's this picture doing in a gasoline ad?

SHOPPERS searching for bigger values! Buyers looking for a greater dollar's worth! What's this got to do with gasoline buying?

It's got a lot to do with it! Plenty to do with it!

Why? Because these shoppers are looking for greater values! And you ought to apply the same thinking to gasoline. You buy gasoline more frequently than other purchases. It is an important item in your family's budget. You owe it to yourself to go where values are!

American Gas has always been the best regular gasoline buy. But now we have created an even bigger buy! A new gas of greater value!

Science has recently found a way to give you a new value in regular gasoline. Value not possible before—because the facilities did not exist to make it. New processes were perfected... patented. New additions made to what was already the world's greatest refining unit. We doubled our capacity... improved the gas. We are now able to build-in—refine-in—extra values that mean a lot to you and your car.

The new gas is ready—NOW! And because of its extra built-in values we call it New Value American Gas. It means New Value for you—greater value for your gasoline dollar... greater value from the money already invested in your automobile. It is known as a "sweet" gas—meaning it's pure, free from undesirable odors—and no added chemicals. You'll say it gives "sweet" performance, too, in your car.

Buy your gas on VALUE—and you will buy the New Value American Gas!

DEMOCRATIC SALE OF F. D. R. AUTOGRAPH ASSAILED BY SNELL

G. O. P. Leader Charges
Violation of Corrupt Practices Act.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP)—Representative Snell, house Republican leader, said today he would propose a congressional investigation into the Democratic national committee's sale of campaign books autographed by President Roosevelt.

He told reporters the books were being sold to corporations for as much as $250 a copy. A section of the corrupt practices act, Snell said, was designed to make it unlawful for a corporation to contribute money to a political party. Snell said he had a photostatic copy of a Democratic committee letterhead which mentioned a contract for four books at $1,000.

At the White House, Stephen T. Early, a secretary, issued this statement:

"The contract was drawn by Forbes Morgan (late treasurer of the Democratic committee) who asked the President to sign blank sheets, telling him if they were autographed the committee could sell them to individuals and raise a sum to go toward erasing the party deficit.

"The President agreed. He signed the sheets and sent them to the committee before he went to South America last November.

"That is all we know about it."

Stars and Bars Raised to Mast As Confederate Veterans Convene

"I Fought Under It; I Shall Never Cease To Love It," Commander-in-Chief Atkinson Tells Comrades at 47th Reunion.

JACKSON, Miss., June 9.—(AP)—The Stars and Bars of the Confederate flag were raised to the mast today by the trembling hands of General Homer Atkinson, commander in chief of the United Confederate Veterans, to open the 47th annual U. C. V. reunion.

His voice tremulous with emotion, his eyes dimmed with tears, General Atkinson gazed reverently at the flag he had fought for, and said almost inaudibly:

"I fought under it. I gave the best I had for it. I shall never cease to love it."

The band played, the crowd applauded and two stalwart aides helped General Atkinson to his seat.

The 47th Confederate reunion was on.

Many wondered if it would be the last.

In the shadow of the old statehouse where Mississippi's secession, and within sight of the marble statue of the first and only president of the short-lived Confederate states, the small band of veterans, still able to make their way about, shouted their praises of Dixie, and a new south.

General Rene Lee, Nashville, adjutant general of the U. C. V., and former commander in chief, stood beside his superior, General Atkinson, in the flag-raising ceremonies, and embraced his fellow officer as the Stars and Bars unfurled in the breeze.

"This man, my superior officer," said General Lee, "suffered with me. We suffered plenty, but we certainly made history."

He paused to pay tribute to the women of the southland.

"In 1863, we didn't know anything about antiseptics, little about surgery, and the women of the south tore up their petticoats to bandage our wounds. They and their daughters are still serving the south and I honor them."

The first general convention session of the reunion will be held tomorrow morning, but preliminary events today gave the veterans, their aides and guests a full program.

They began the day by dedicating a park in south Jackson, where a Civil War battle was fought in Linters' Woods. There, the United States marine band, representatives of a new military regime, played Dixie tunes.

Two Bottles a Day, Beri-Beri, They Say

ATLANTIC CITY, June 9.—(AP)—Large numbers of the "two-bottle" drinkers who put away more than a quart of liquor daily develop a severe form of the oriental disease beri-beri, Dr. Robert Goodhart and Dr. Norman Joliffe, of New York, told the American Medical Association today.

This disease, commonly found in the far east, because of a lack of vitamin B, causes the legs to become rigid, the muscles to dry up, anemia and neuralgia develop and paralysis sometimes sets in.

The physicians declared they had been able to treat the disease successfully with massive doses of vitamin B even when patients continue to soak up a quart of liquor daily.

In addition, Dr. Goodhart added, administration of the vitamin also apparently benefited cases of cirrhosis of the liver, a disease commonly believed to result from heavy drinking.

KING GEORGE OBSERVES 'DELAYED' BIRTHDAY

LONDON, June 9.—(AP)—King George VI rode a chestnut charger at the head of his troops today in a celebration of the monarch's 41st birthday delayed six months because of the abdication.

The King, attired in the uniform of the colonel-in-chief of the grenadier guards, led a sovereign's escort of life guards in glittering helmets and foreign military attaches to the trooping of the colors in historic horse guards' parade.

Immediately behind the King rode his younger brothers, the Dukes of Gloucester and Kent.

PHOTO-ENGRAVERS MEET NEXT WEEK

The annual meeting of the Southeastern Photo-Engravers' Association for election of officers and general business will be held on Sunday night. A buffet supper will follow.

Chairmen for each day of the conference, in the order named, will be Tom Crabtree, George T. Linnen, Harry Allen, John McDonald and Norman Wrigley.

ROUSED POLICEWOMAN RESTORED TO PENSION

Mrs. Lora Davis, policewoman, who was dismissed from the department under the administration of former Mayor James L. Key, yesterday was restored as a member of the police pension fund at a meeting of the pension board in the office of City Comptroller B. Graham West.

Mrs. Davis was dismissed without trial and city authorities contended she was not under civil service. She appealed to the courts, and the city was reversed. She was reinstated to the force, but not as a member of the pension fund until yesterday.

NEGRO PROFESSOR IS SHOT TO DEATH

Woman Teacher Held in Slaying of Big Bethel Leader.

George H. Williams, 51, of 1187 West Hunter street, negro professor at Booker T. Washington school, died early yesterday morning shortly after police found him in an automobile in front of 105 Simpson street, a bullet wound in the right side of the chest.

Williams, assistant pastor at Big Bethel church and superintendent of the Sunday school, said he had been shot by Rosa M. Cosby, 30, negro, of 487 Ashby street, a teacher in the Ashby Street school and assistant secretary of Big Bethel Sunday school.

The Cosby woman was arrested when she stepped from a bus at Chattanooga, en route to her former home in St. Louis, and was later returned here by Detectives E. I. Hilderbrand and C. L. Taylor. She was booked on a charge of suspicion of murder.

The detectives quoted her as saying "Williams, wrecked my life." She said she planned to go to St. Louis, and that Williams objected, telling her, she said, "I'm not going to let you go there and besmirch my name and reflect on my integrity."

The Cosby woman also stated Williams had a gun and several pieces of jewelry belonging to her, and that when she asked him for the articles, he drew the weapon. A scuffle followed and the weapon was discharged once.

Radio Patrolmen P. E. Green and W. C. Acree found Williams, his feet in the car and the rest of his body sprawled on the curb-side.

Williams came to Atlanta from the West Indies. Two years ago he received a biology degree from Gammon Seminary, and the day of his death received a bachelor of arts degree from Clark University.

Too Many Toots Get Earl Mann Ticket to Court

Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta Crackers, to whom the noise of crowds at Ponce de Leon ball park is music, found himself a victim of noise of a different sort early yesterday morning.

The Cracker boss was one of nine persons charged with violating the city's excessive noise ordinance by blowing his automobile horn at a Ponce de Leon avenue drive-in eating establishment. He was given a summons by Patrolmen Turner Wallace and R. R. (Jack) Bradford, for a hearing at 4:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in recorder's court.

The others given summonses were listed as Claude Hill, of 21 Cain street; Charles Hodges, of 365 Glenwood avenue; Dr. W. B. Armstrong, of 851 Myrtle street; H. N. Green, of 1139 West Peachtree street; J. H. Brazier, of 2922 North Fulton drive; H. T. Crawford, of 805 Curran street; Bill Reed, of 816 Parkway drive, and D. J. Hogan, of 1246 Ponce de Leon avenue.

The noise ordinance was recently adopted following complaints of residents near the restaurants, who told members of the police committee the horn-blowing made sleep virtually impossible.

I. B. WILLIAMSON DIES IN HOSPITAL

Atlantan Associated With Railroad 39 Years.

Isaac Blanton Williamson, veteran employee of the Atlanta & West Point railroad, died in a private hospital yesterday.

He was associated with the railroad for 39 years, but retired in April due to failing health. Mr. Williamson resided at 390 Altoona place and was one of the oldest members of the Order of Railroad Conductors.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jessie Milner Williamson; two sons, Blanton and Frank Williamson; a brother, Parks Williamson, of Piedmont, Ga.; and a sister, Mrs. Irene Collier, of Fitzgerald.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the residence with Dr. Harold Shields officiating.

PLANE'S CRASH LAID TO FAULTY NAVIGATION

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP)—The Bureau of Air Commerce said today faulty navigation was the "probable cause" of an airplane crash near Kellogg, Idaho, last December 18. The crash resulted in the death of the plane's crew of two men.

The plane was a regular Northwest Air Liner, flying from Chicago and St. Paul to Seattle. It was piloted by Joe Livermore with Arthur A. Haid as co-pilot. It carried 10 passengers.

The bureau's findings said that the ship did not follow the radio range course upon leaving Missoula, Mont., and that it failed to ascend to a safe altitude over the course pursued from Elk River, Idaho.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Early to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sick and the world looks pink.

Locatives are only makeshifts. A more bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Habitually refuse any other pills.

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 10, 1937.

THE PEOPLE SPEAK

Once again the voters of Georgia have expressed their wish that the state's quarter-century-old prohibition statute remain the law of Georgia. That expression must be accepted. Always, in a democracy, the will of the majority must rule.

The Constitution held, and still feels, it would be the wise course for Georgia to follow the lead of the 43 other states which have abandoned the fruitless experiment of living under an unenforceable law, and that repeal of the almost universally flouted law would aid the cause of real temperance.

A majority of the voters have thought otherwise. The great majority of the dry ballots were, undoubtedly, cast by sincere and honest men and women who believed they were acting for the best for the state they love.

As a result of the election, Georgia remains a theoretical island, surrounded by wet territory. Alabama on the west, North and South Carolina on the northeast and Florida on the south have all adopted liquor control plans. Thus the boundaries of the state remain open gateways, through which can pour floods of intoxicating liquors of all kinds and descriptions.

It would require a huge army of peace officers to close these floodgates effectively, but the people have spoken and their decision, that intoxicating liquors shall not be legalized in Georgia, must rule.

It was a calm, unfrenzied expression of opinion. The preceding campaign was, happily, marked with dignity and restraint. Both sides were content to rest their case with the people without appeal to prejudice or passion.

Georgia will accept the verdict without undue excitement.

The state remains technically dry because the people have spoken and they are the supreme court of appeal.

THE AMENDMENTS APPROVED

Georgia for the fourth time has placed her emphatic stamp of approval on the New Deal as represented by the social security legislation included among the constitutional amendments ratified by the voters in Tuesday's election.

In the primary last year the voters by overwhelming majority approved this program by nominating the officials who gave it their support. At the Democratic convention in Macon the 6,000 delegates endorsed it by adopting it in toto as the party platform. The legislature gave it the third approval by providing for this week's vote on the necessary constitutional amendments.

The tremendous majority given his program on Tuesday is, in addition, a striking demonstration of the confidence and trust the voters of Georgia repose in Governor Rivers. They are, evidently, determined to march with him down the road of the New Deal in social security and they have convincingly shown their belief in his integrity of purpose and wise leadership.

Now Georgia may share in those benefits which other states already enjoy under the federal statutes. She may receive her just share of federal money for old-age pensions, for unemployment insurance, for the care of her indigent blind and her poor children.

Governor Rivers has been the banner-bearer in leading the state toward full participation in the benefits of modern government for all the people. Under his standard it has marched to its proper place in the ranks of the forward-looking states and it is, evidently, glad to leave its public affairs in his hands.

WORLD DEMAND FOR WOOD PULP

Reports in the paper industry of advancing prices on fine papers, as well as the commoner grades, are of especial interest to the south-east because of the rapidly expanding paper and pulp industry based upon the pine forests.

The reasons for higher prices, according to authorities in the industry itself, are fivefold. It is stated, first, that there has been a substantial increase in the consumption of all grades of paper. Second, that the expanding rayon industry is using more pulp every year. Third, that there is an active demand for pulp by several foreign governments, believed for use in the manufacture of war munitions.

Fourth, that the war in Spain has stopped exports of esparto pulp from that country, forcing paper mills in England and France to use wood pulp instead. Five, the emergence of many countries from the depression has increased the world demand for wood pulp.

This should emphasize, once more, the importance to Georgia of conservation of her forest resources. It is inevitable, in view of these world conditions, that the demand for pulp wood from Georgia shall increase, with corresponding mounting prices. Dr. Charles Herty, to whom the south owes its new wood-pulp industry, has stated there is an inexhaustible supply of raw material in the pine forests of this section.

That material, however, must not be wasted. The forests must not be destroyed through the shortsighted policy of "clear cutting." Proper stands of timber to insure natural reseeded must be safeguarded.

The paper and pulp interests, in a recent meeting at Savannah, adopted voluntary regulations for cutting, which, if carefully observed, will forever preserve the forest lands of Georgia as a source of constantly increased crop revenue.

A SHOWDOWN NEARS

The announcement by Sheriff James R. Hicks Jr., of Bibb county, that he will arrest as vagrants all persons who refuse to accept private employment, whether or not they are receiving federal or local relief, should bring an early showdown between conflicting claims on the farm labor situation in Georgia.

Sheriff Hicks proved he meant business yesterday afternoon by charging a negro relief worker with vagrancy and placing him in the Bibb county jail.

D. L. Floyd, chief statistician of the Georgia Crop Reporting Service, has stated that, for every 100 jobs on the farms of the state, there are only 86 workers available. Sheriff Hicks declares farmers, brickyard operators, lumbermen and others cannot obtain needed labor because many workers prefer to remain on the semi-idleness of the relief rolls. "I don't know what will happen when cotton picking time comes unless action is taken," he warns.

On the other hand, Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state WPA administrator, asserted less than 40 complaints of farm labor shortage in Georgia have reached WPA offices this year, considerably below the number of 1936 complaints.

Marion O'Connor, director of the Georgia State Employment Service, declares "there is no acute shortage in the Macon district where prevailing wages are offered to labor."

A determined drive by Georgia peace officers, as urged by Sheriff Hicks, should reveal the truth on these conflicting claims on the Georgia labor situation. If there is no labor shortage, the officers will quickly learn that fact when they seek all who refuse to take private employment.

If the shortage actually exists, the burden of public relief will be appreciably lessened and the administrators will undoubtedly be the first to welcome another indication that the unemployment emergency in Georgia, as in the rest of the nation, is nearing an end.

Private employers must not, of course, be allowed to take advantage of a situation and obtain labor for less than a living wage. Workers receiving less than subsistence for their toil will quickly create a new unemployment problem.

On the other hand, relief officials must remember it is not their province to compel a general advance in prevailing wages paid. Public relief was instituted to meet an emergency and to provide living subsistence for those who otherwise faced starvation. Regardless of approval or disapproval of the prevailing wage scales, it is not the duty of relief officials to correct either fancied or real wage evils. There are other channels for such reforms and other controlling factors, notably the oft-forgotten law of supply and demand.

When relief has carried the unemployed worker to that point where he can again live by his own effort, independently or in private employment, the duty of relief is fully accomplished.

"Instruction in jazz and swing music is to be given the high school students of New York." Thus rhythm, at last, takes its place among the four R's.

Covers are disappearing from the manholes of Houston, Texas, causing police to wonder. They shouldn't. The manhole is the last refuge of the pedestrian.

There may be something in a proposition that Hitler was an inferior paperhanger. Even a dictator doesn't get that indignant over a lie.

Editorial of the Day

THE VALUE OF LATIN

(From the Memphis Commercial Appeal.)
Richard L. Taylor, 15-year-old student of Baton Rouge, wrote letters to 25 more or less eminent persons in the United States asking whether he should include Latin in his studies. Now, whether the young gentleman in future years seriously regrets not having gained a certain working knowledge of Latin does depend to some extent, we think, on what he does and what his ideas of pleasure and entertainment turn out to be. If he decides to be either doctor or lawyer, he will genuinely regret not having remained with Latin. Such a great part of the terminology of these two professions is based on Latin that lack of some acquaintance with the language is a handicap to the student and the practitioner.

The English and American languages alike derive very largely from the Latin, and without the aforesaid working knowledge of it, perhaps 85 per cent of the words in our dictionaries lose for us their basic color and meaning. To know something of a word's parentage and history is to be able to choose with a great deal more discrimination. Finally, if Richard should happen to find reading one of the material occupations and joys of his life, he will miss the Latin. Not only will his appreciation of the words he scans be less, but also he will probably miss the flavor of many allusions to Latin history and mythology that deck the pages written by the master poets, novelists, essayists and historians. He can get this latter information without reading Ovid and others among the Latin masters, but the chances are against his doing it unless he sets himself definitely to it.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON.

PRUNING WASHINGTON, June 9.—It is too much to say any farm bill is ever dead, but the pending O'Neal-Pharaoh-Wallace bill is as dead as one could get. The reason you have heard no sounds of it is because it is being garroted by legislative friends of the farmer in the house. They are not ready to make any announcements yet, but have decided their course. They plan to prune the ever-normal granary provision for wheat and a mild tenant farm provision from the measure. These two ideas they will pass before adjournment. The bulk of the omnibus bill (production control, surplus control, crop insurance, etc.) they do not want.

If they go through with their intentions, as now seems certain, it will be the first time in history that a farm bill, backed by farm organizations and the federal government, ever failed. The bill, as you know, is sponsored by Chairman O'Neal, of the Farm Bureau Federation, based on some ideas from Pharaoh, and worked up by Agriculture Secretary Wallace.

The opposition, as you should know by now, is based on belief that the farm situation is being fairly well handled at present, that the new production control measures may wreck the existing system on constitutional rocks.

OUTLOOK The lineup on other important legislation has not changed much lately. The prophets are somewhat fearful that President Roosevelt will spring a coup for a two-judge compromise on supreme court packing. There are about six senators you cannot put your finger on. They might backslide. However, odds still are against any increase in the court.

The minimum wage-maximum hour bill will become law with minor alterations. Word has come from the White House that it is MUST. . . . The power planning program is also must, but not in capital letters. The plot is to jam it through near the close of the session, but the plot may fail. A few legislative stoppers will be put in tax evasion holes, after some auto magnates, a friend of Coolidge, several publishers and a few ex-Liberty Leaguers are tried in publicity fat. . . . Some form of slums clearance will be passed. Details now are being argued out with the treasury, and the program will not amount to much for 1938, but will be enlarged for later years. . . . Congress will be in session until fall if Mr. R. can keep the boys here. He may have difficulty finding a quorum along about July 1.

UNDYING FAME A great tribute to the late Senator Huey P. Long was paid at the Louisiana State University commencement exercises a few days ago. A nationally known orator likened Long's educational efforts to those of Thomas Jefferson at the University of Virginia, and said:

"It is fitting, therefore, that adequate recognition be given by the state and by the nation to the part played by one of your outstanding leaders in the development of this institution. Some of his accomplishments will grow with the passing of time, but this university may remain for centuries as a monument to the unselfish zeal in the cause of education of your late distinguished United States Senator Long."

A prize of 100 stuffed ballots for any elective office will be awarded to any reader who guesses the identity of the orator without looking for the answer in the last line of this column.

PURPOSE Capable Representative Dies, of Texas, led a movement on the floor of the house which puzzled his colleagues. He wanted to insert a provision in the bill authorizing a new south-Texas federal judge, which would have required Mr. Roosevelt to name someone from that district.

The inside cloakroom explanation is that Governor Alfred, of Texas, is slated to get the job and some south-Texans wanted to block the deal.

ENLIGHTENMENT A congressman broke down and confessed why he was going to vote for the President's court packing plan at a meeting of the demagogue club this week. He said in substance:

"I want to stay in Washington. My wife and two daughters cannot stand our little home town of 3,000 or 4,000 people more than sixty days each year. If I oppose the President and am defeated, he will be unwilling to give me an appointment in Washington. If I support him, he will have to take care of me whether or not I am re-elected. That way I cannot lose. "I would be willing to risk voting against it, but only the thinking people of my district are opposed to it. The great bulk of the people either do not know anything about it or do not care. "Why should I stick out my neck to be a hero for the few? It's not my fault but my people's if they do not put a premium on courage. I'm just giving them what they want."

ANSWER The Louisiana speech was delivered by Postmaster General James A. Farley. And he promised to open a postoffice at L. S. U. Time rockets on.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

So many things, there are, to do,
And days are, oh, so short;
We only can work hard and true
And worry over nought.

Compliments
Are Deserved.

This year's issue of "Pandora," the University of Georgia yearbook, is such a magnificent production of the photographic, editorial and printing arts there should be haste to bestow unstinted praise upon all its compilers.

This is the 50th anniversary of the publication and, in its rich gold binding, with the beautiful color printing inside, it is a worthy semi-centennial memento.

There is only one worry. How on earth can the staff of 50 years hence produce a centennial edition surpassing this?

After All,
The World's All Right.

With all the reports and editorializings and commentators' views on world conditions it is time visible not to get pessimistic over the future of civilization, at times. The observer on the sidelines is apt to feel discouraged over humanity when he reads of atrocious happenings in Spain and tries to follow the diverse ramifications of dictatorship politics in the world. And, when he turns to America and reads of strikes and sit-downs and men killed in industrial conflict, he feels still lower in mind and soul.

What, he asks, has become of Christianity and decent humanity and the brotherhood of man?

Then, some little thing happens to remind him that he is still in the world, that human hearts still respond to normal impulse, that the birds sing and happy children laugh.

Here's what I saw yesterday:

In a Large Store.

It was in one of the city's larger retail stores, an establishment I visit almost daily.

Behind one of the bargain counters, for many months, there has been a salesgirl with an exceptionally attractive personality. Not bubbling, you know, but pleasant and withal dignified. Giving the impression she knew her job, was thoroughly competent.

In fact, her evident ability had attracted my attention. As I suppose it did lots of others and, at times, I had idly wondered what sort of a girl she'd be in her home.

Well, yesterday, she was in the store again, but not as a clerk. There has been a new girl at her counter for several days.

The former salesgirl was there, yesterday, as a visitor. Paying a call on all her friends among the other girls at work.

She was smartly dressed in an outfit, from head to toe, that couldn't be more than a couple of days old.

A well-selected hat and costume and shoes. One that fitted a new personality she had donned.

For the old dignity had entirely disappeared. She was positively radiant. She didn't walk between the counters. That is, not sedately or primly. There was a dance to her feet and a vibrant joy evident in every move, every expression. She was happiness personified.

Letting the Girls
See Her Acquisition.

At each counter she'd stop, a little while, and talk with the girls there. And, at the next counter, the girls would be waiting, hardly able to conceal their impatience for her to get to them.

At each stop the same ritual occurred. She extended her hand and showed them a ring. And she'd flash a beam with pride and they would exclaim in admiration and unselfish joy in her happiness.

I snooped close enough to catch a glimpse at the ring myself, when the heroine and her friends at one counter were too engrossed in ejaculations to notice a mere man.

It was on the third finger of her left hand, one of those modern, beautifully designed, wedding rings.

Only fate can tell how long her new joys will last, but yesterday she was the living symbol of bridal ecstasy that poets have pictured through all the ages.

While youth can know joy like that, there is hope for humanity, after all.

Life goes on. We live and work and marry and work, know joy and sorrow, success and disappointment. And at last we go to quiet rest within the warm bosom of Earth, the universal mother.

"The hearse moves over the hill to the burying ground, but still there is a cry for the christening robe."

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Monday, June 10, 1912:
"Lefty Russell, Connie Mack's $12,000 beauty, who has been loaned to the Crackers, will make his official debut as a Cracker this afternoon against the Volunteers."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Friday, June 10, 1867:
"Colonel Light, Cherokee Sam and the Salvation Army luminaries who were expected to arrive in the city last night did not materialize. They will reach Atlanta today, and a big meeting at the barracks is promised for tonight."

The Gimlet.

David McConnell Smyth invented the gimlet screw-point, one of those obvious inventions that waited centuries to be discovered. When he was only 14 years old, he and other inventions brought him a fortune; at one time his royalties were $300,000 a year.

Fair Enough

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Loophole NEW YORK, June 9. The best income tax experts and loophole experts in the country are the accountants employed by the United States Bureau of Internal Revenue to comb the returns for mistakes and evasions. They are kiver-to-kiver men who know the law and the regulations forward, backward and sideways, and they can sort out the deliberately snarled relations of a dozen or a hundred money corporations as unerringly as an old woman by a firsides unwinds a castoff sweater.

These agents know all the government's tricks. Snarles and loopholes, too, and any big taxpayer, corporate or individual, who wants to save advice on evading taxes and avoiding the traps set by the Treasury Department can save money by hiring an agent out of the Bureau of Internal Revenue to come and point out how.

These agents get small pay from the government, but they pick up all the trade and business secrets of business firms by delving into their affairs and there is nothing to prevent their resigning to sell their information to private employers.

Andrew Mellon, when he was the secretary of the treasury, ordered a survey showing the most effective income tax escapes as revealed by the intimate experience of the government's experts. He received a report listing nine methods and, according to testimony given later, used some of those methods himself.

Arbitrary The government, however, also uses technicalities to trick, harass and, as far as honesty and decency are concerned, to rob the taxpayers. I cite the case of a widow of a man who died a year ago, who has been compelled to preserve and recently to drag out for inspection by a party of ghouls from the Treasury Department the few old suits, the socks, worn underwear, the hats and the rusty, curly-shafted golf clubs of her late husband that they might be appraised as part of his estate. He was not a dressy man and his clothes, when new, didn't stand him much, but a second-hand dealer wouldn't pay his own brother $50 for the whole wardrobe in its present condition.

The widow would have given them away except that this would have been regarded as an attempt to evade appraisal and might have resulted in a punitive, arbitrary appraisal in the absence of the clothes. A tax on the wardrobe would not yield more than a few dollars, but the government has a cunning idea.

Speaking Speaking of ethics, morality and loopholes, I submit that the policy of the government in this instance smells somewhat more foul than that of the rich evader who forms a phoney company to save a few dollars from the clutches of the deserving Democrats.

The government uses as many loopholes, evasions and tricks as any individual or corporation and with no more ethical or honest intent; in addition to all of which the reviewer of agencies has given personal grift and persecute victims of personal or political displeasure.

The Treasury enters court with dirty hands.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Miss Lillie Sheats has invited me to the Sheats family reunion for several years, but there was always something in the way and I had to forego the pleasure, but I got there this year. The reunion was held last Sunday at Grant park in Atlanta. After church Sunday morning, I went on out there, expecting to see a little group of people and I found more than a hundred folks standing about the table as the minister asked the blessing. Big folks and little folks, old folks and young folks—happy folks. Man, they had real reasons—baked ham and fried ham, baked chicken and fried chicken and chicken pie, roast beef, roast lamb, roast pork, stuffed eggs, salads galore, all sorts of pickles, home-made biscuit from home-raised wheat, cornbread, lemonade, iced tea, all the cakes and all the pies.

There are four of the elder Sheats brothers living—Merrell, Sam, Charley and Zollicoff. Merrell is Miss Lillie and Miss Lucy. There were five generations of this family at the reunion. It was a grand occasion. After everybody backed off from the tables, still laden with delicious food, they had a brief devotional service and sang a number of beautiful hymns. At they sang "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder, I'll Be There." I saw one of the middle-aged descendants—a man in his forties—with tears in his eyes. Afterward, I was told that his father was one of the six brothers who had "entered into life." I asked the young generations if they intended to maintain these annual Sheats family reunions, and they quickly answered that they would. Fine.

If He Expects to Inherit Millions, He Is Miserable When He Gets $50,000

By ROBERT QUILLEN

An intelligent woman who teaches in one of the state universities recently expressed sympathy for the young people of today, "whose chances of happiness are comparatively few."

Many earnest citizens express a similar belief, in conversation and in print, and the inference is that this generation of youngsters is for some reason doomed to be less happy than any that preceded it.

It may be true, but where is the evidence to prove it? Happiness is not a birthright. Most children and youngsters in their teens are happy, as colts and kittens are, because they are young and healthy and bubbling over with energy. But many people are incapable of happiness and the greatest good fortune can bring them nothing more than a placid and bovine contentment. Those who are capable of happiness can achieve it only during a short period, for happiness is like an enthusiasm or excitement and the capacity for it wanes with the years.

People who feel intensely can be happier than others; but they have no lasting advantages, for they are also more miserable than others. Nature balances all things, and those who receive most pay the biggest price.

When colt-and-kitten happiness ends, there is a period of ten or twenty years when life can be and should be a joyous adventure.

In what particular are modern young people denied their chance to find joy?

If entertainment and excitement contribute anything to happiness, the present generation is the most fortunate in history. For the first time, there is "something to do" every night. No previous generation had movies, radios, cars and such complete liberty.

But it isn't probable that entertainment ever made anybody happy after childhood. Those who never had it were not unhappy for want of it; and while those who learn to depend on it may be miserable without it, it cannot bring happiness to the unhappy.

The truth is that the source of happiness and unhappiness, like the Kingdom of Heaven, is within you.

Until we are old enough and wise enough to understand values, our unhappiness is caused by wanting something we are unable to obtain—whether money, fame, popularity or good looks. The unhappiness is a mixture of envy, covetousness and resentment of life's unfairness.

If modern youngsters are thus made unhappier than others, it is because they are taught to desire and expect more than they are able to earn.

Yet we can think of no greater joy than again to be twenty-one, free and penniless, and again face the open road with all of life's adventure before us.

Fascist Tactics.

NEW YORK—Signor Mussolini is willing to come back in the non-intervention committee. That committee's task is to see that no war materials are shipped to either side in the Spanish conflict. At the same time a communique is given out to the international press in Rome which says that in a conference between the commander in chief of the German army, General Werner von Blomberg, and the Duce, the two men decided that the offensive by the Rebels against Bilbao must be pushed with the utmost vigor. Italian artillery in fact is moving up to the front. German bombing planes are ready for a new blast attack. That's nonintervention.

Herr Adolf's income from the sale of his book, "Mein Kampf" (My Battle) amounts to a million and a half dollars. Of course, the volume is compulsory reading in all German schools and universities. THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"The healing of the seamless dress
Is by our beds of pain,
We touch Him in life's throng and press
And we are whole again."

Is it within either the province or the competence of the church to determine whether a competitive or a co-operative economic system is better for the world? The question comes out of a recent tabled motion at the Southern Baptist Conference meeting in New Orleans—and the answers are eloquent of an issue never yet settled which goes to the very heart of what we call modern religion. "Conservative churchmen," writes Charles G. Dobbin, of Monteville, Ala., "have allowed themselves to become absorbed in keeping the church whole, forgetting the really essential need of a vitalizing Christ. Without a Christ whose leadership means fearless opposition to all the forces of evil—whether inside the 'existing order' or outside it—the church is seen by the youth of today as a mockery of reaction and self-interest."

"I am convinced that young people never again will accept your concept of the church as an asylum from worldly rancors and indecisions in the sense that you use it. They see splendid love, beauty, faith and courage in the leadership of ministers who face the evils of their social order and go into battle against them."

E. W. H. of Interlachen, Fla., thinks otherwise. "In His teachings did Jesus ever take up the material questions of the day?" he asks. "I cannot seem to remember that he did. On several occasions he pointedly refused to be drawn into such—as when the Pharisees tempted him with the query 'Is it lawful to give tribute unto Caesar, or not?' And again, when appealed to on a world affair, he said, 'Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you?'" But from James E. Dean, of Greensboro, Ala., the famous lighting Baptist preacher who lost his position with the Baptist Institute for heresy and who has been championed by this column

Fire Extinguisher Shooting Is Fatal

LONDON, June 9.—(AP)—An investigation disclosed today that George Southcombe, 42, had apparently shot himself to death with a fire extinguisher. He was found dead in his office yesterday with the extinguisher by his side.

The preliminary inquiry indicated he had removed the cylinder from the instrument, substituted a cartridge and then exploded the cartridge by striking the hammer of the extinguisher.

on many occasions, comes sharp and scholarly disagreement with our point. "Competition is in no sense a holy thing," he declares, "even though some of our more conservative minds seem to think so. It is not in harmony with the teachings of the prophets and apostles. The word 'co-operation' does not occur in the King James version of the Bible but the idea is there in abundance in such terms as fellowship, brotherhood, and the communion."

This reminds us of an address delivered in 1933 by the W. J. Cameron who now makes such interesting radio talks every Sunday night for Henry Ford. The address was entitled "The Economic Law of the Lord" and it undertook to prove that the Lord is opposed to interest, that He favors taxes based on the produce of property rather than upon property itself, and that He believes in private property and "a guarantee of individual independence."

It did not say how the Lord stands on the law of supply and demand or the principle of marginal utility or the theory of diminishing returns but it did identify Him definitely with the competitive as against the collectivist economic system. The Almighty is made out as opposed principally to people who make a profit out of other people's debts.

Whether Mr. Cameron holds the same concept of the "law of the Lord" today that he held four years ago before he became a radio star for the Ford hour, we don't know. But we hope not, because it is silly. Silly to the point of sacrilege.

Those who believe the Southern Baptist Conference should have declared against the competitive and in favor of the co-operative economic system because the latter system is, in their opinion, "the economic law of the Lord" should read Mr. Cameron's efforts to prove that the Lord is on the other side—and be convinced that economics is a subject which the Lord meant men to work out for themselves.

BRITAIN PROTESTS INSURGENT 'MINING'

Rebel Regime Blamed for 'Blasting' of English Ship, Killing 8 Seamen.

LONDON, June 9.—(AP)—Great Britain dispatched a protest to Generalissimo Francisco Franco today blaming the Spanish insurgent regime for a mine hit by the British destroyer Hunter off Almeria May 13 with the loss of eight British seamen.

Although Britain termed the explosion an "accident," a foreign office spokesman indicated the insurgents had laid mines off Almeria and elsewhere.

The protest apparently assumed that the destroyer struck one of these explosives anchored off the Spanish coast.

Sir Henry Chilton, the British ambassador to Spain who maintains headquarters across the French border at Hendaye, was ordered to present his government's protest to the insurgent junta at Salamanca.

Britain reminded the insurgents that she previously had notified them of the Spanish civil conflict that mine laying was not legitimate since the British had not accorded belligerent rights to either side.

Britain, reserving the right to claim damages for the incident, did not give the Hunter's exact location at the time of the explosion.

LAVONIA WILL OPEN WOMEN'S MARKET
Columbus Roberts To Speak at Saturday Exercises.

LAVONIA, Ga., June 9.—The Franklin County Club Market and Women's Exchange will be opened in the Weldon building in downtown Lavonia Saturday with exercises at which Commissioner of Agriculture Columbus Roberts will be the principal speaker.

The exchange, establishment of which has been sponsored by the Lavonia Lions Club, will work in conjunction with the State Bureau of Markets in Atlanta. It will handle all women's handicraft and handwork, and will serve as a clearing point where staples not sold in the local markets can be sent for further distribution.

A number of figures connected with the Department of Agriculture and the University of Georgia extension department are expected to be present at the exercises, at which Mrs. Robin Wood, Mrs. John K. Ottley Sr., Mrs. Claude Creighton Smith, Mrs. Ruth Campbell and Miss Pauline Brannan, all of Atlanta, also will speak. These women form the committee functioning in conjunction with operation of the Atlanta clearing market for the state. They will be introduced by Mrs. Stewart Brown, president of the Royston Woman's Club.

Rush Burton, editor of the Lavonia Times, will introduce Commissioner Roberts.

Jean Harlow Paid Final Tribute; Powell and Gable Weep at Services

Jeanette MacDonald Opens Services With "Indian Love Call"; Many Film Notables Send Flowers; 1,000 Unable To See Star.

HOLLYWOOD, June 9.—(UP)—The famous of Hollywood gathered today in the tiny Wee Kirk of the Heather chapel for the funeral of Jean Harlow, whose body lay in a silver and bronze coffin, smothered with gardenias sent by the man she might have married—William Powell.

Outside the chapel there was an orderly crowd of 1,000—ordinary folk who gathered in their quiet way to say goodbye to the girl whose image and voice were romance to them.

Powell wept during the brief services, and Miss Harlow's mother, Mrs. Jean Bello, patted him on the shoulder and said:

"Our baby would not want you to act like this about her."

The services, lasting only 23 minutes, were simple in accordance with Miss Harlow's often-expressed wish. Jeanette MacDonald, screen star, opened them by singing one of Miss Harlow's favorite songs, "Indian Love Call" from the operetta "Rose Marie."

Nelson Eddy, another famous figure in the movies, closed the services by singing "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life."

In between those songs, Mrs. Genevieve Smith, Christian Science reader, who was closely associated with Miss Harlow, conducted services. She read the 29th Psalm and took for her theme "God is our love, strength and refuge."

Mrs. Smith's voice broke several times during the services and once she called for a silent prayer.

Then she said the Lord's Prayer and added:

"Let not your heart be troubled. I go to prepare a place for you. Peace I leave with you. He that believeth in Me though dead, shall live, and he that liveth and believeth in Me shall never die. God shall wipe away all tears and there shall be no death."

Tears were in the eyes of Clark Gable, who was to have co-starred with Miss Harlow in the picture "Saratoga"—a film that will be abandoned at a loss of $500,000 to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Company.

Flowers from famous actors and actresses filled the chapel and continued to arrive during the funeral. Warner Baxter, close friend of Miss Harlow, sent gladioli, the bearing a card reading "Loving Sympathy." Joan Bennett sent a sheaf of French roses.

Myrna Loy sent a large spray of white gladioli with a card reading

"With My Utter Devotion." Harlow's floral offering was a spray of dahlias.

Kay Francis, screen star, had her name on a card attached to a bunch of gardenias and orchids.

The body was left in the chapel to be removed later to the crypt called "Sanctuary of Benediction," where rest the bodies of Marie Dressler, Florenz Ziegfeld, Lon Chaney, Will Rogers and Lowell Sherman.

HOUSE OF LORDS INDUCTS BALDWIN

Occasion Marred by Death of Political Manager.

LONDON, June 9.—(AP)—Former Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin was inducted into the house of lords as Earl Baldwin of Bewdley today, but the triumph of the occasion was marred by the death in Bewdley of the man who had managed his political battles in his home constituency for 28 years.

Cause of the death of Arthur Annis, 62, political agent for the Conservative Association in Bewdley, remained a mystery, although indications pointed to poisoning.

Annis was found dead at about the same hour the "Old Squire of Westminster" became a peer amid the traditional pageantry of Britain's upper parliamentary chamber.

The 60-year-old retired premier found it a bit bewildering as he changed from Sir Stanley Baldwin, K. C., to Earl Baldwin of Bewdley, Viscount Corvedale of Corvedale in the county of Salop, in the peerage of the United Kingdom.

Lady Baldwin, not yet eligible for the peeresses' galleries, watched from the box of the gentleman usher of the black rod.

ALBANY VOTERS ASK FOR EASTERN TIME

ALBANY, Ga., June 9.—(AP)—This city cast a plurality of four votes in favor of eastern standard time the year round in yesterday's special city election.

The count was: Eastern standard, 298; Central standard, 294; central daylight, 213.

Albany now operates under central daylight time in summer and central standard in winter—the third preference given by the voters yesterday.

The election is not binding on the city commission, which has the power to fix the time system.

Californian Is Cleared In Wife Purchase Case

NEVADA CITY, Cal., June 9.—(AP)—William Ebaugh, 29, stood cleared today of charges he bought Mrs. Ray Delama, 39, for $20 and held her three months against her will in his forest cabin. Mrs. Delama held to her charge that her husband, Arthur Delama, sold her, but Township Justice W. L. Mobley dismissed the case on defense testimony she had been seen riding with Ebaugh in a taxicab and that she had told one woman and he treated her well.

CALLS UNSELFISHNESS AN ANTIDOTE TO FEAR

Development of unselfishness and cultivation of worthy companions were given as antidotes to fear and cynicism in an address to graduates of Spelman College by Dr. Elmer A. Love, pastor of the First Baptist church of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., at the Spelman commencement yesterday.

Florence M. Read, president of the college, conferred bachelor of arts degrees on a class of 39 young women and the degree of bachelor of science on 13 others.

TIME Marches On
...IN AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATION

Quietly TAKES THE LEAD

Serve Electrolux, the Gas refrigerator you hear about but never hear, is quietly taking the lead in modern automatic refrigeration. In its entire freezing system there is not a single moving part. Nothing to grow noisy with age, or to wear out and cause expensive replacements. A tiny Gas flame circulates a simple refrigerant, providing constant, steady food protection and ice cubes in abundance. This amazing simplicity is the key to its longer life, exceedingly low operating cost and increasing popularity. Before you decide on any refrigerator, see and compare Electrolux, the Gas refrigerator.

NEW YORK, June 9.—(P)—Loans of several traction and utility companies operating in New York city lent a touch of color to an otherwise drab and even-pace bond market today.

Issues of Interborough Rapid Transit Company, running subway and elevated lines in the metropolitan area, and loans of New York Steam Corporation made good swells. The I. R. T. obligations rallied following a court order directing the receiver to pay the July interest and sinking fund requirements on the refunding $5 Reactory for weeks, the $5 rose 2 to 65 1/2 and the certificates 2 to 65 1/2. The 7 per cent notes added 2-2 1/2 to 65 1/2 and the 6 per cent unsecured notes gained 3-4 to 23 1-4.

The New York Steam liens reacted 1 to 2 1-2 points after the New York Public Service Commission refused to sanction an exchange of preferred stock between Consolidated Edison and its steam subsidiary. The reaction, temporarily at least, blocked the parent company's plan to absorb New York Steam and a step in its comprehensive consolidation plan. Hence, the latter's bonds were denied the direct benefits that barge New York Steam Corporation into Consolidated Gas would have produced.

The 5s of 1956 lost 2-1-2 to 102 3-4. The 5s of 1951 dropped 1 1-4 to 104 and the 6s of 1947 lowered 1 to 105 1-4.

High-grade rail loans found support and closed even to a little higher. Southern Pacific 4-1-25 gained major fractions and Northern Pacific 4s lifted a bit. St. Paul 5s of 1975 lost 3-4 to 29 and Rock Island 4s fell 1 1-4 to 34 3-5. The Associated Press averages for 20 rails improved 1 1/2 of a point to 93.8.

United States Governments finished weakly lower with setbacks ranging from 1-32 of a point to 7-32. The recessions were recorded during extremely light dealing. Trading in the outside market also was listless.

Total turnover for all bonds was $7,477,000, face value, compared with $7,964,000 Wednesday.

TRADE FEDERATION SUSPENDS UNIONS

Locals Affiliated With Dual Organizations Stricken on Green Order.

The Atlanta Federation of Trades last night formally suspended locals affiliated with national and international unions not now in good standing with the American Federation of Labor, and which have become affiliated with any rival or dual organizations.

The action was taken at a meeting of the trades federation held in the Labor Temple, J. A. (Gus) Harper, president, said.

Harper said the locals affected were the Ladies' Garment Workers, Textile Workers and Automobile Workers, and that the dropping of those locals from the trades body's roll call was in accordance with a request from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Harper stated the move was merely a formality, in line with action taken May 24 at the Cincinnati convention of the American Federation of Labor.

He said the locals suspended were not affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization, but were those affiliated with "national and international unions."

The suspension move had been expected for some time, it was pointed out.

COLUMBUS MILL SALE APPROVED BY COURT

NEW YORK, June 9.—(AP)—The sale of the Columbus, Ga., mill of the Standard Textile Products Corporation for $500,000 was approved today by United States District Judge Julian W. Mack.

The purchaser, the Crescent Corporation, Jacob Ziskind and Albert A. List all of Fall River, Mass., paid $150,000 and at the end of 60 days will pay off notes for $25,000 each month until the balance has been all paid. The notes are secured by a purchase money mortgage.

A general creditors' meeting of Standard Textile Products Corporation, which is in progress of reorganization under Section 77-B of the bankruptcy act, is scheduled before Judge Mack July 9 at 10:30 a. m.

NEW AIRMAIL ROUTES FORESEEN IN U. S. BIDS

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(UP) A scramble of commercial airlines for at least four new routes was foreseen tonight as the Postoffice Department prepared to ask bids shortly as part of its $1,400,000 expansion of air mail service.

It was believed the department may advertise a new route between Jacksonville, Fla., and Mobile, Ala.

Operation of the Jacksonville-Mobile route would serve to expedite mail from Central and South American countries to the East, postoffice officials said.

Business Progress In Recovery Parade

Montgomery Teachers Given Wage Boost.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 9.—(AP)—Pay increases of $5 to $10 a month for Montgomery county teachers in the lower salary brackets were announced today by the board of education.

Dr. Dannelly, superintendent of schools, said white teachers who are not college graduates and have taught here six years or longer would receive a minimum of $95 a month.

Jewel Tea Company Shows Sales Increase.

NEW YORK, June 9.—(AP)—Jewel Tea Company, Inc., reported today for the four weeks ended May 22 total sales of $1,844,297 compared with $1,511,253 a year ago, a gain of 22 per cent. For the 20 weeks ended May 22 sales totaled $8,804,683 against $7,583,157 in the like 1936 period, a gain of 16 per cent.

Manufacturer of Gases Declares Extra Dividend.

NEW YORK, June 9.—(AP)—Air Reduction Company, Inc., manufacturer of pressure gases and welding and cutting equipment, today declared an extra dividend of 75 cents and the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents both payable July 15 to stockholders of record July 30.

In the two preceding quarters extras of 25 cents were paid.

bor act by refusing to enter negotiations for a signed contract.

Sidney Hillman, chairman of the Textile Workers' Organizing Committee, said at Washington a strike, affecting silk mills employing between 50,000 and 60,000 workers, probably would be called in about two weeks to support a demand for signed contracts.

Unionists in a Fisher Body plant at Baltimore struck, forcing a shutdown of the neighboring Chevrolet assembly plant and leaving 2,200 wage earners idle.

Peace offers were rejected by strikers in a Ford Motor Company plant at Boston and in a hotel at St. Paul, Minn.

A compromise was sought in the truckmen and warehouse workers' walkout in New York. The strikers' numbers swelled by 1,500 yesterday and reached a total of 2,500.

Union leaders sought negotiations with Nebraska truck operators in a strike unionists claimed affected 6,000 workers and 1,500 trucks.

Governor Murphy in an address last night at the 59th commencement at Duquesne University said unrest among labor is "nothing essentially new or unusual."

"It is simply an acute manifestation of labor's long struggle to protect itself by a larger share of its own product and to escape the haunting fear of insecurity by consolidating itself in its job."

SALE OF CITY HALL TO STATE SOUGHT

In the heart of the business district.

Mayor Hartford was enthusiastic at what he regarded as opportunity for the city to "get its money back out of the city hall, perform a real service to the state of Georgia in surrendering the building at actual cost and relocating the city hall so that it would be convenient for a vast majority of the people of Atlanta."

"If plan to contact the governor and others with a view of making a definite offer for the building," he said last night. "I am confident it would be a great convenience to the state."

Options are now held by the state on property bounded by Washington street, Capitol avenue, Fair street and Capitol square.

That block is located just across the street from the present city hall.

GEORGIA TECH ALUMNI WILL MEET TOMORROW

Alumni of Georgia Tech will hold their annual buffet supper and business meeting as part of the school's precommencement exercises at 7 o'clock tomorrow night at the Capital City Club.

Officers of the group will submit their reports and the results of an election of officers, the balloting being done by mail, will be announced.

Visiting graduates from all over the nation are expected to attend the supper-meeting.

BILL WOULD PROTECT VETS OF FUTURE WARS

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP)—Representative Allard H. Gasque, of Florence, N. C., proposed today congress provide in advance for veterans of future wars and their dependents by applying at the beginning of any such conflict the same laws which set up death or disability benefits for World War veterans.

Agnes Scott Graduates Make Plans For Summer's Travel in Europe

By Sally Forth.

AGNES SCOTT seniors seem to have had one idea as to disposing of their first summer as full-fledged graduates—that of travel in Europe. And such interesting plans they have made for the next three months, with different groups sailing at intervals throughout the month of June.

First there was Margaret Hansell, who embarked for France last Saturday, with a tour of the continent in mind before again taking up her studies at the University of Grenoble, high in the French Alps. An open road tour has been planned by a group sailing from New York on June 19. Miss Carrie Scandrett, assistant dean of Agnes Scott, and Alberta Palmour, alumnae field secretary, will lead the group which includes Mary Jane Tigert, of Gainesville, Fla.; Frances Belford, of Savannah; Ann Worthing Johnson and Helen Johnson, of Rome; Adelaide Benson, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Dorothy Jester, of Lynchburg, Va.; Emmy Lou Turck, of Germantown, Pa., and Elizabeth Mitchell, of Atlanta.

An especial itinerary has been planned for these girls, who will meet students in the European countries through which they travel and be entertained in private homes in order to get something of the foreign atmosphere and mode of living. In lieu of hotels, this interesting party will be quartered in student centers.

Sarah Johnson, of Washington, Ga., will also sail from New York on June 19, her objective being the Baptist World Youth Conference to be held in Zurich, Switzerland, August 7-11. Before attending the conference, however, Sarah will travel in England, France and Italy, and will take a Mediterranean cruise to Egypt and the Holy Land.

Other Agnes Scott graduates who will tour Europe this summer are Frances Cary, of Greenville, S. C.; Mary Willis, of Augusta; and Marjorie Scott, of Milledgeville.

A CERTAIN young benedict ran his car into a telephone post recently. He may not give the real reason in traffic court, but Sally heard the low-down. It seems he was taking his wife and his mother-in-law for a drive.

His wife is one of those persons who talks a lot with her hands. Seated in the back of the car with her mother, she was illustrating her conversation with much waving and pointing.

"Oh, yes," she said as they passed a certain house, "Mrs. (mentioning the name of her mother-in-law) told me she was blessed-evening," and she pointed to the home of one of her mother-in-law's close friends.

Now, the husband didn't see the pointing, heard the remark, and himself being a married man of some 10 years, almost fainted at the idea of an addition to mother's family. In

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Give Reception On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Bradley celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last evening at their home on Peachtree way. They were assisted in receiving by their daughter and son, Mrs. James Hitt and John Bradley Jr. Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Merrill Ewing, J. L. Aenebach and W. B. Leake, of West Palm Beach, Fla. The latter is Mrs. Bradley's sister and was the only attendant in the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley solemnized in this city 25 years ago.

Miss Mildred Ewing and Sarah Poole presided over the punch bowl. The beautifully appointed table in the dining room featured the color motif of silver and white with silver napkins and white roses gracing either end. A three-tiered wedding cake adorned the center of the table, which was also ornamented by silver candelabra holding white tapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley are widely beloved citizens of this city, the latter being the former Miss Gertrude Butler. Mrs. Bradley is president of the Witches' Club, well-known charitable organization in this city. She takes an active part in the Peachtree Road Presbyterian church.

Miss Bungan Feted At Party Series

Miss Mary Alice Bungan, of Elizabethton, Tenn., is proving the inspiration for a series of delightful social affairs as the guest of Miss Eloise Blackwell at her home at 3398 Piedmont road. Miss Bungan and Miss Blackwell are roommates at Shorter College and they are enjoying their first vacation days in Atlanta.

Miss Edith Stover will honor Miss Bungan with a luncheon today at her home on Euclid avenue. The visitor was the inspiration for the party at which the Sigma Tau Delta sorority, of which Miss Blackwell is a member, entertained on Tuesday.

Miss Blackwell honored her guest with a swimming and badminton party yesterday at her home.

Guests included Misses Bungan, Anne Sidmore, Dea Hamilton, Catherine Allen, Harriet Fuller, Edith Stover, Betty Brewer, William McCarty, Mildred Reese, Boyd, Frances Boyd, Catherine Allen, Anita Peavy, Adeline Slaughter, Sudra Huguley, and Mary Holbrook and her guest, Elizabeth Lyle, of Winchester, Ky.

Belles To Visit Miss Helen Fuller

Misses Katherine Oliver, Nina O'Brien and Betty Kernion, of New Orleans, and Nell Connell, of Ruleville, Miss., will arrive Friday to visit Miss Helen Fuller at her home on Peachtree circle. During their stay here the quartet of visiting belles will be honored at a series of social gayeties.

The first of the parties planned in their honor is the luncheon at which Miss Deas Hamilton will be hostess Saturday at the Piedmont Driving Club, a small group of the younger contingent being invited.

Miss Fuller will entertain Sunday evening from 6 to 8 o'clock at an open house at her home on Peachtree circle complimenting her guests, a large group of the high school contingent being invited.

Miss Margaret Palmer has planned a luncheon June 14 at her home on Woodcrest avenue in Brookwood Hills as another complimentary gesture to the visiting belles, and June 15 Miss Elizabeth Colley will be hostess at an informal tea at her home on Club drive with the visitors as central figures.

On June 16 Miss Bungy Fuller will entertain at a dinner party on the roof at the Capital City Club honoring the visitors, the guests to include a group of Atlanta belles and their escorts.

Miss Elliott Becomes Bride of Mr. Bowles

Miss Edra Frances Elliott, daughter of Mrs. Fannie Carroll Elliott, became the bride of Frank Bowles at a home ceremony which took place Saturday at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Eugene G. Kilpatrick, on Chappell road. The Rev. Walter M. Blackwell was the officiating minister.

Mrs. Eugene G. Kilpatrick was her sister's matron of honor and only attendant. She wore a powder blue chiffon gown with a cluster of sweet peas. Miss Pauline Bolsius, lighted the candles. She was attired in a white crepe dress. Miss Doris McDonald held the bride's book. Her gown was of green chiffon.

The bride entered with her brother, Eugene Kilpatrick, who gave her in marriage. They were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his brother, Glenn Bowles, who was his best man.

The bride was attired in a gown of peach gingham. The bodice featured a pointed neckline and short puffed sleeves. Her veil was of tulle made fingertip length and fastened capsize to her hair by a wreath of orange blossoms in halo effect. Her flowers were gardenias.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kilpatrick entertained at an informal reception, after which Mr. Bowles and his bride left for a wedding trip to New York.

Mrs. Charles Lloyd Freeman will entertain at a bridal birthday luncheon in honor of Miss Beall on Friday, at Colonial terrace. Sharing honors with Miss Beall will be Miss Thelma Edwards, bride-elect of July.

Guests will include Miss Beall, Miss Edwards, Miss Kathleen Elliott, Theresa Edwards, Cornelia Hearn and Mesdames Mitchell, Charles Romines, Noland Tupper, Bobby Key, Nan Blackwell and John A. Beall.

Mrs. Charles Romines honored Miss Beall at luncheon at her home on North Highland avenue, Wednesday, the guests including the wedding attendants.

Miss Kathleen Elliott, of Lake Wales, Fla., arrived Saturday to serve as a bridesmaid at the Beall-Keefer wedding, June 15.

Mrs. J. A. Beall will entertain at openhouse, Sunday from 4 to 6 o'clock, in honor of her daughter. Assisting in entertaining will be Misses Martha Penn, Kathleen Elliott and Katherine Welsh.

First Love Not Always Transcending Love, Says Chatfield

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

MAGIC IN THE SCIENTIFIC DIET.

You are always looking for some slim-while-you-eat diet . . . and there is one! Meat, milk and eggs help you to get slim, for protein is the magic element in the reducing diet. It is a scientific fact that you can lose weight faster on a low calorie diet—with most of the energy in protein, a decreased amount of carbohydrates, and the fats sharply curtailed.

The body uses more calories on a protein-rich diet, and this makes reducing easier. Dr. Jean L. Bogart in her excellent book "Dietetics Simplified," explains that "more fuel, or energy, will be used in the body on a protein-rich diet than on one where the same amount of energy is furnished by carbohydrates or fat." This reducing phenomenon is termed the specific dynamic action of protein, because protein speeds up tissue metabolism. What this means is that you lose weight faster on the same number of calories when liberal amounts of protein are included in the diet.

Protein in the form of lean meat, skinned milk or butter milk, and eggs should be the basis of your reducing menu. You will meet your daily protein requirements if you take a liberal serving of lean meat, one glass of buttermilk or skinned milk and a serving of cheese or two glasses of milk, and one to two eggs. These, together with the small quantity of protein furnished in breads, cereals and certain vegetables, will be adequate.

In addition to their stimulating effect on the metabolism, Dr. Bogart points out that meat and eggs have a high satiety value. In other words, these foods "stick to the ribs" and are your mainstay against hunger between low calorie meals.

Foods can be low in calories but have high satiety value.

Satiety value plays a very important role in your reducing diet, since every hunger pang is a temptation to quit the diet. Foods differ in their satiety value, as Dr. Bogart explains: Fluids and fibrous vegetables are bulky and filling, but they leave the stomach quickly, so that you seem to be chronically hungry. Foods other than protein recommended for their satiety value are those which require much chewing—as toast, crisp biscuits, bulky salads and coleslaw. All these foods impart the illusion of being well fed. Hot soups and beverages give comfort and satiety all out of proportion to the low calorie content. Sweets in moderation at the end of the meal also help to give a feeling of satiety to the reducing diet.

There are tricks in all trades, you see—even in the making of a reducing diet.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

ILION, N. Y., Tuesday.—Amelia Earhart reached Africa safely and is the first woman who has made the eastward crossing of the South Atlantic by plane. Congratulations to her, and may the rest of her trip be equally successful. Personally, I shall be glad when this trip around the world, following the equatorial line more or less, is safely over, but that's because I am more interested in her as a person than I am in scientific adventures. I recognize, however, the value not only of scientific experiments, but the mere stimulus given the rest of us by this spirit of courageous adventure.

Last night we drove back from Westport, Connecticut, over another road, and from Pittsfield into Albany we faced a most glorious sunset as we would over the hills. We ate our supper by the side of the road, finishing up what we hadn't eaten for lunch. Both of us decided this morning that eating was, after all, a matter of habit, for we were no hungrier at breakfast than we would have been if we had had our usual three square meals yesterday.

As we listened to the radio in the evening, we heard the news of Jean Harlow's death. I am not enough of a movie fan to have any particular favorites on the screen, but she lunched with me last winter, wrote me a charming note afterward and I have kept a very pleasant memory of her.

Many who have enjoyed her acting will miss her as a screen star, but I am sure there must have been some people around her to whom she was not a star, but a person. To them I should like to say that even such a casual contact as mine, has made me feel sorry that such a young person should have so little opportunity to develop her possibilities and enjoy her life.

Early this morning we started on our drive to Henderson House in Herkimer county, New York, where Mrs. Scheider and I are lunching with Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson, before we move through the rooms, where Douglas Robinson, whom I know well, and at Richfield Springs turned off and went west through Jordanville, where stands the memorial library given to the village by Douglas Robinson.

The Robinsons have been identified with this part of the state since the land was originally granted to the family by Queen Anne. My father's letters are full of the stories of the good times which that generation had in this old house when old Mrs. Douglas Robinson, whom I can still remember well, kept house for her son, Douglas, and his sister who later married and went to live in England.

The house stands on top of the mountain looking toward the foothills of the Adirondacks. It has charm and that subtle something which only age gives, a sense of atmosphere created by innumerable people who have lived here before. In this case they all had strong personalities and, as you look at their portraits and move through the rooms, you seem to feel their actual influence as it moulded not only their own family, but the surroundings in which they lived.

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH McRAE BOYKIN.

We have some petticoat popping to do today.

We have some petticoat popping to do today. First, we think it's time for a protest against this vogue for elegance that the decorators have decreed. It's all very pretty, of course, and we're a believer in having a home as beautiful as means will permit. And we don't hold for tame mohair just because it wears like iron either. But we've seen just one white linoleum floor too many . . . just one more pale satin chair than we can approve. After all, a lot of American women do their own work. White linoleum and white broadloom show every footmark and that's too much cleaning for the lady who has to get rid of footmarks. Satin upholstery lasts just exactly three years under reasonable use, and that's not long enough for its cost in the average home.

Rooms That Set Styles.

You see, we've just been on a round of the most distinguished of New York decorators exhibits of new rooms—the rooms that set styles as the Paris fashion openings do. And we just can't see families growing up in those too, too beautiful rooms of blonde floors and pastel upholstery. "Would be well and good if we all had a retinue of ancestral retainers in our marble halls and all the money we need for replacements."

What we ask in the exhibits are rooms that interpret gracious backgrounds in terms of every-day life. The distinguished decorators do beautiful things with rooms in the royal manner, but they fail conspicuously in the execution of

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

A LISSOME BELLY PRESERVES VITE.

Man who has retained extraordinary vitality past 90 ascribes his health to the fact that he has always worn suspenders.

The habit of wearing belts, corsets, girdles and other harness that confines, represses, supports, constricts or splints the belly, stomach, abdomen or diaphragm to you, Aunt Euphemia—lowers vital capacity.

Dr. S. Adolphus Knof, famous authority on tuberculosis, recommends belly breathing exercise for chronic arthritis. He quotes one physician's opinion of it: "It helps to relax, it quiets the heart, it lessens fatigue and increases endurance. It improves the portal circulation and thus prevents the distressing symptoms of gas accumulation in the abdomen." The physician did not mean in the abdomen, of course, but rather gas in the stomach or intestine.

Dr. Clella Duell Mosher, for many years medical adviser to women in Stanford University, has brought relief to thousands of women and girls who suffered from various effects of pelvic webbing, and in each case excessive or irregular menstruation, by prescribing a simple belly breathing exercise.

Dr. Samuel Delano, chest specialist, advocated a belly breathing exercise with the mouth open, one-half dozen breaths six times daily in cases of asthma, emphysema and chronic bronchitis.

Dr. Theron W. Kilmer, New York physician, introduced in 1907 a belly band, 6 to 12 inches wide, 3 inches shorter than the girth of patient, having inserted in each side a strip of elastic webbing, and in each end eye-lets. The belt is put on over the undershirt and laced with a long shoelace or narrow tape at the back, so that it gives snug support. This Kilmer belt has proved valuable for patients with whooping cough—protects against hernia, prevents vomiting, lessens severity and frequency of paroxysms.

Drs. J. Meakins and R. V. Christie, of Montreal, suggested a belly binder of the same kind as a relief for the distress that accompanies the ineffectual coughing of emphysema and chronic bronchitis. Emphysema means weakening, atrophy and overstretching or ballooning of the air cells in the lungs—loss of elasticity. One with emphysema wheezes more or less constantly and especially on exertion; one with asthma wheezes only when an asthmatic seizure is on.

Ol' Doc Brady, who is n. i., puts himself to sleep every night with half-dozen belly inflations, in spite of a terrible conscience, and advises regular belly breathing exercise for the following complaints:

Hypertension, high blood pressure, arteriosclerosis, chronic myocardial degeneration or slow heart muscle failure, poor circulation, cold feet, nervousness, emphysema, asthma, chronic bronchitis, but not pulmonary tuberculosis unless under your physician's constant care.

rooms that people—just people—are going to live in.

And yet it requires more ability to do rooms of charm on a small sum than on an unlimited amount. A room costing a young fortune ought to be beautiful. A room built on imagination and ingenuity is a lot more of a triumph for the interior decorator with real talent.

Original Ideas. Do you know where we found more ideas of originality coupled with livable charm? Right in the big department stores, for their decorators are in touch with the actual needs of actual people. So we doff our Breton sailor to the anonymous decorators in the stores who plan pleasant possible ways for us to make our homes more amiable while the thinkers-up of mirrored dining tables and velvet lined bathrooms grab off all the glory.

JUST NUTS

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

Five years ago I married a widower 20 years older than I. He had three children between the ages of 11 and 20, yet in spite of these two handicaps we have got along like a summer breeze. He is as good to me as a husband could be and while I don't think there are many men without some bad habits, he is one. There is an old lady in our block who was a dear friend of his first wife and she feels a proprietary interest in the family. Her favorite topic of conversation is the impossibility of a man's loving a second wife as much as he loved his first. I don't argue with her, or even tell her that the subject is distasteful to me because of respect for her age; but the seeds she has sown are sprouting and I am worrying and wondering if I am getting my full share of my husband's love. I ask myself the question: Could she be right? I ask you: Is she?

SECOND WIFE.

ANSWER: Of all the trouble borrowers I have ever heard of, you are tops. A model man for a husband with whom you have close comradeship and an understanding so clear that not even the face of a newspaper is missed; yet in spite of all this you worry and wonder if you are getting your share. Surely you are getting your share and what the man gave his first wife has no bearing on your relationship to him, except as he taught him how to be a good husband.

There are a lot of meddlesome old ladies in the land who haven't any excitement beyond that they can stir up in their neighborhoods. They fire their shots and sit back gleefully to see them go home. Be sure this "friend" of the family has noted your discomfort when she has dragged out her favorite topic of conversation and thrashed it out, even though you haven't answered back. Forget her, and don't let her have the satisfaction of seeing you upset.

Perhaps it is true that a man knows one transcending love in his life. But who said it was always number one that elicited it? Nobody said the first wives themselves who swallow the idea as sop to their vanity. The proof that they are not quite sure lies in the fact that they are forever affirming their belief that a man can love only once. They are trying to quiet their own fears.

Proverbially second wives are treated with greater consideration and greater generosity than firsts. This is why a first can't look upon the spectacle of a second without inward ragings and outward ravings. She will stand on her hind legs and bark at seeing number two lapping up luxuries which number one couldn't reach. She will snarl at the husband who pulls his purse zipper to set up number two in style. She is thinking of what her husband may do if she should die and he should marry again—which she knows he will. She is personally affronted by the evidences that she may not be the alpha and omega, the beginning and the end of her husband's love life.

Truly a woman has to worry about something or she isn't contented. The first wife worries about what her husband may do in case of her death. The second wife worries about the love her husband gave his dead wife. Perhaps the third, and fourth wives take it easy. At any rate this sort of worry doesn't cause gray hairs or hardened arteries. It merely adds zest to the game.

On The Record

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

MR. GALLOWAY AND MR. PAYNE.

It is not inappropos to ask at this moment: Who is the government of the United States, and who runs the Postoffice Department? Because in Niles, Ohio, the United States postoffice has a couple of censors. Their names are Mr. Galloway and Mr. Payne.

Dorothy Thompson.

They are representatives of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, which is conducting a strike against the various affiliates of the Republic of Steel Corporation. These gentlemen have told the assistant postmaster, Mr. Bert Flaherty, according to his own report, that they "won't allow" packages of non-perishable food, or of clothing or of newspapers, to be accepted for delivery to men who are still working in the Republic plant, and so Mr. Flaherty "re-grets."

Now let's get this clear. This column believes in trade unions. This column believes that the industrial union is, by and large, the best form of organization for mass production industries. This column believes that the closed shop is advantageous. It believes in all these things, subject to genuinely democratic control in the union, and its willingness to accept responsibility to collaborate in efficient production, and protect the public. But more than that it believes in these things, this column believes in law, and in government by law. The postoffice is not the property of the CIO or of any other trade union. And it is fantastic and unique that a private organization can decide what shall or shall not be sent through the United States mail, and can actually send representatives to open packages and give postmasters orders. The action is revolutionary.

The way it was paved by Mr. Farley. Some days ago he announced that he would forward only "normal" parcel post packages to workers in the factories which are being struck. The ground for that remarkable decision was that the Postoffice Department does not want to take sides. It was an amazing statement. We had not known, until that moment, that was the business of the Postoffice Department to intervene in any way in labor disputes. There are laws prohibiting the shipment of certain classes of goods—perishable foodstuffs, for instance, and obscene literature—through the United States mails. But it is news that any law covers the prohibition of newspapers, which are otherwise admitted to the mails, to specific destinations. And it is news, news unique in our history, that trade union officials may open mail and censor it. It is the worst news that the American people have heard for a long time.

Quickly, very quickly, the people of the United States must decide what course they wish to take in the settlement of labor disputes. Because the course that is being taken amounts already to minor civil war, in which the noncombatants are being terrorized even as the combatants are. The Wagner labor relations act, ironically designed to help the causes of industrial strife, is getting us nowhere. The CIO plainly interprets the act to mean the legalization of any method whatsoever for enforcing the recognition of its own membership, as sole collective bargaining agency, wherever they may try to organize. If that is the purpose of the act, the English language is singularly inexpressive.

The capitulation of the postoffice to force, is only another step in the breakdown of law. Strikers and their allies have been sniping at airplanes, bent on carrying food to the workers in the factories. Some reporters describe strikers carrying rifles, and all reporters agree that they are armed with baseball bats and homemade bludgeons, and that the areas around the plants are lined for blocks by strikers who close the streets to every pedestrian, whether concerned in the dispute or not.

All this is patently against the law. No organization, except the forces of government itself, has the right to close off streets. No American citizen has the right to threaten another American citizen with any weapon, whether it be firearms or a brick-bat, and in the long run, no people will endure such invasion of civil liberties and basic rights. Either the law must be clear and function justly or we shall see in this country the horrible growth of vigilantism.

Already, we have had in the course of this strike, one riot with several fatalities, which occurred when police fired upon picketers. The police are altogether too quick with their guns. We saw plenty of evidence of that in prohibition days, and it has been traditional in labor disputes. Civilized democracies do not arm the ordinary police with more than nightsticks. But civilized communities also do not permit private citizens to arm themselves, either with rifles, bombs, or baseball bats. Industrial plants have their own arsenals, guards, armed private police. Now we are beginning to see unions adopt the same tactics. The end of this is chaos. If the police cannot shoot, they must have unquestioned moral authority, and that depends upon general respect for law, and its prompt invocation. We shall never be able to disarm the police until the moment when a man who spits in the face of a policeman goes to jail for it. But that means judges who are not dependent upon the votes of organized labor or organized capital.

All this vitally concerns the little man, whatever his occupation may be. For whatever law is suspended, he, eventually, is the victim.

Significant is the bill which passed the house of the Michigan legislature last Wednesday by a two-to-one vote and has the support of Governor Frank Murphy. It provides for the establishment of a state labor relations board and gives the Governor power to seize and operate strike-threatened plants.

This, again, does not provide for rule by law in labor disputes. It establishes no principle applicable to both capital and labor. It hands over to the Governor of a great industrial state completely arbitrary powers in case of labor troubles. A supposedly liberal Governor friendly to labor approves the delegation of blanket powers which might operate on behalf of labor providing he himself sits in the Governor's chair, but which under other circumstances might prove to be the most dangerous weapon for wholesale oppression ever permitted in this country.

The bill indicates what will certainly happen on a large scale if the rights and responsibilities of both unions and industries are not more clearly defined in law and the law then is partially enforced. The Michigan measure is only another sign of how rapidly this country is moving away from government by law toward government by uncontrolled authorities vested with enormous power.

It ought to be the first concern of liberals to halt this tendency. They ought to have the perception to see from examples all around them that such a course always has the same end—the delivery of the independents, of all minorities, of the unorganized and the weak into the hands of the powerful, the organized, and the boss-ridden, invested with police powers and the capacity to enforce their wishes by laws of their own making. But, instead, the liberals—too many of them—align themselves for or against law, according to whether the law serves, for the moment, the specific interest with which they sympathize. And thus they busy themselves with the armament which once completed will be used, in the first line, against the liberals, themselves.

Hollywood Today

By HAROLD HEFFERMAN

HOLLYWOOD, June 9.—Hollywood's 15-year campaign to erase the reputation it gained in years gone by as a wild party town is in danger of a severe setback.

Frankly alarmed by the peril of scandalous repercussions from some of the studio convention parties which have been held here this summer in greater numbers—and with more zest, perhaps—than ever before, the Motion Picture Producers' Association is reported to be urging studio executives to exercise rigid precautions hereafter in arranging plans for the entertainment of salesmen delegates.

Hint of a possible grand jury investigation (and a million-dollar damage suit) into the charges of a young film extra that she was assigned, among 125 other girls, to entertain guests of a major studio convention and that she was mistreated during a riotous ranch party, has filled the Hays office with concern. An investigation is reported under way to determine details of the party, which was not an officially programmed event on the entertainment calendar.

Hollywood has been doing very nicely in its organized efforts to live down the Babylonian prophecies written into the early pages of its speckled history book.

Its traditional reputation as a world headquarters for sin, revel and various brands of iniquity has been more or less successfully dimmed in the public mind through a gradual influx of a new and more substantial crop of workers, and the Hays office does not intend to permit a few thoughtlessly conceived forays to undo the good work.

Four large sales conventions already have been held in Hollywood this summer. Two more are scheduled for later this month. Those who have made close study of convention results so far this summer agree that one thing is almost certain. There will be few, if any, sales conventions held in Hollywood next summer.

Studio executives now realize the town still casts a certain indefinable spell over business-bound delegates. They have discovered that the sudden transplaning of an energetic film salesman into the magic precincts of Hollywood, where glamor comes by the yard—and at the old price of gingham—is hardly conducive to thoughts of business.

They have discovered that their brilliant oratorical efforts to impress on a sales force the necessity of getting every possible dollar out of exhibitors for their product fall on preoccupied minds. The boys are in carnival mood.

Further, the studio heads find their production schedules disrupted to a very serious extent. Not all salesmen, or change workers are so averted by the picture-making sights they see on studio stages as company heads would believe. To the average person, film salesman included, a peek inside a movie set is more than a trifle disillusioning. The backgrounds and the general atmosphere of a movie in the making are not nearly so gorgeous, so elaborate as they appear from a theater seat. This situation is no psychological lift to a salesman who must go out and wax enthusiastic in his sales talks. On the other hand, it is a decided letdown for his selling morale.

The cost of bringing 300 or more delegates from all parts of the country, and even from exchange centers in Europe, to far-off Hollywood is another deterring factor to heap on the other disadvantages.

But, if scandal continues to rumble in the wake of current conventions, the Hays office is certain to forget economic hindrances and concentrate its anti-Hollywood-convention drive on "moral" and "industry welfare" phases of the problem.

It seems safe even at this early date to advise hotel managers in Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Kansas City and other midwestern cities to concentrate now on that profitable new business that looms for 1938—because the handwriting is on the wall. Hollywood seems to be doing a fadeout as a convention host.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Carol Clayton postpones her marriage to wealthy Hartley Madison and starts to play the horses so that she can pay Duke Bradley her dead father's debt of $10,000. Carol resents the handsome bookmaker because he had accused her of marriage for money. Her luck is phenomenal. The Duke, warned her of a nervous breakdown, gets Hartley to join her in Florida. It is a steal when Hartley places his first bet with him for Carol has determined to thwart all his moves in the direction of Carol. He persuades Hartley to go to California on business. In order to get him out of Duke's clutches. But when she discovers that Duke is following him out she becomes so enraged that she runs after Duke in her negligee, furiously determined to stop him. Without realizing what she is doing, she dashes into the cocktail room. Suddenly, a news photographer takes a picture. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XXVII

"But his luck is turning. I got back ten thousand today. If only I can find a way to keep him here, the good old law of averages will do the rest."

"Duke, darling," said Fritzie, "nobody can win against a bank-roll like his. Why don't you forget it all—maybe this is a hint from fate. Maybe this is the time for you to leave the tracks forever as you always say you're going to do."

"What'll I leave on?" he demanded. Sure I'm going to give it up—that's why I have to stick until I've cashed in big."

"Either of you heard anything from Carol?"

"I suppose Madison has. I've not. She always thought I was poison—and now!"

"You're a dear," Fritzie, "but you're too dumb to talk to. So let's forget everything but this swell swing music and show what we can do when we step out on a floor and put our minds at it. Maybe I'm not so svelt or whatever that highbrow word is, as some of these dolls and maybe I'll never take any prizes for my footwork. But do I love it?"

"O. K.," said Duke. "Suckers who desert just as luck is coming my way—horses which play me false—matter for the moment. We'll strut our stuff for all the world to see."

They did not speak again. Fritzie was wondering what she could do to help Duke. If only she could think of something. She could make Kiffie bet with Duke, of course, but she was afraid to do that. He might be as lucky as Madison. Duke was trying to think of something, anything to keep Madison with him for a few more days at least. If he didn't—they were dancing toward the table where Tip and Kiffie sat. Suddenly he saw Tip's jaw drop, his eyes bulge. He was beckoning for them to come closer.

"Trouble!" said Tip. "And with a capital T. Look."

Duke looked.

On the stairway leading down into the room was Carol!

Duke whirled Fritzie around so quickly she almost lost her balance and danced toward the stairway.

"Why nominate yourself the committee of welcome?" asked Fritzie in a bantering tone. "One would think you liked the girl, that you were glad to see her."

"Glad?" Fritzie isn't a word in the English language to express what I'm feeling this moment. Why I can just see all my troubles blowing away like straws in a hurricane."

"She never has done much for you except nick your bankroll and talk to you as if you were a pick-pocket. What makes you think she's going to be different? Why, she'll throw Madison on that plane, if necessary, to get him away from you."

"That's been my doing, Fritzie, did you ever hear of generals who changed their attitude when the first one failed? Well, you see one of them right now."

He had kept his eyes on Carol all the time and had paced their steps so he and Fritzie would be at the foot of the stairway when she reached the bottom step.

"Act as if you are going to drop dead with surprise," he whispered to Fritzie.

He did not know that Carol, too, was acting. She had seen him and Fritzie and what she had seen she did not like. Of course she knew Fritzie was engaged to Kiffie and that he had been foolish to be jealous of her and Duke. With her mind she knew it, but that knowledge had no power over her heart. She never saw them together, laughing, joking, so openly fond of each other, that she did not hate them both. At first she had not understood why she felt that way. Now she did. During the last few days she had learned much about herself.

"Hello!" cried Duke, as he and Fritzie danced in front of her.

"Good evening," she said.

"Am I glad to see you!" said Duke, taking both her hands. "How many ages has it been since last we met?" Now I know what the word eternity means!"

"How do you do, Miss O'Malley," said Carol turning to Fritzie. "You look as if you'd seen a ghost. What's the matter?"

"Nothing, honey," said Fritzie proud of her acting. "It was just flabbergasted when I heard your voice. Never so surprised in my life."

An arm suddenly shot from under the bed and tugged at Carol's skirt.

"You're just in time," Duke said. "Hartley's leaving in the dawn. Did you know that?"

"I wouldn't have come all the way out here if I had," she answered stiffly.

Kiffie was coming toward them. Fritzie saw her chance.

"Why do you neglect me so, Kiffie-lamb," she asked coaxingly. "You ought to cut in on me—make me look popular. Don't say you hate dancing. If I can stand it, you can."

"Anything you say, Fritzie," he said holding out his arms.

"I was never one to leave a lady fair stranded on a dance floor," said Duke. "So, if you will do the honor—I'll dance you over to Hartley's table."

It was the first time they had ever danced together. It was a good beginning. The orchestra was playing a soft, seductive waltz, the lights were low and mellow, the shouts and laughter had become a low hum, soothing and rhythmic.

"I can't help telling you I was never so glad to see anyone in my life, as when I saw you tonight. I've seen some beautiful things in my life, but nothing compared to the sight of you."

She couldn't speak for a minute. She was fighting for self-control. She couldn't hope to think of any "wise-crack." But if she tried very hard, perhaps she could be matter-of-fact.

"Don't think you have to 'con me, Duke," she said, calling him by his first name for the first time in their acquaintance. "You know you said we would just be fair foes."

"Oh that was in the dim, and I hope to-be-forgotten past," he said. "I've been all kinds of a fool. But now—"

"Yes," she said softly. "But now I'm wise. Everything."

"That he's the one who's done the thrumming. In the first three days, he took eighty thousand from me."

She burst out laughing. "Eighty thousand! Oh, that's too wonderful."

"I won't believe you're as heartless as you sound," he said. "But if you were, you'd have to listen to me, you'd have to help me. Carol, I can't lose him now. You've got to help me; let me have my chance. The money doesn't matter to Madison. It does to me. Time is all I need. Today, my luck changed. I won ten of the eighty back."

"I can't see why you are complaining. Your business is taking bets. You must know you'll lose sometimes."

THE NORTHERN LIGHTS.

A few weeks ago, a pupil in a school I was visiting asked me: "Will you please tell me about the Northern Lights?"

The Northern Lights, or "Aurora Borealis," are usually arcs or bands of light which spread over the northern sky from time to time. Sometimes they are coronas, patches, curtains or glows, but always they have light in them, and always they give us a feeling of wonder.

A view of the Northern Lights.

Books have been written about the Northern Lights, and several scientists have spent years in studying them. Here are a few of the facts which have been learned: The displays are seen once in a while in our latitude, but they are most frequent in far northern parts. In northern Canada, Alaska and Siberia, they are common, sometimes taking place on as many as 100 nights in a year. People in Norway and Sweden also see them very often.

The lights appear to spread out from a region above the magnetic north pole. The magnetic pole is in Boothia peninsula, northwest of Hudson bay. It is about 650 miles south of what we call the geographical north pole.

When there are many spots on the sun, the Northern Lights are seen far more often than when there are very few sun spots. The next few years should be good ones for displays, since the number of sun spots is growing.

Many aurora streamers are white. Others are yellow, red or green. Sometimes a streak or band is red in its lower part, yellow in its highest part. A violet color has been observed in some cases.

The extreme height of most auroras seems to be no more than 150 or 200 miles. In certain cases, they are even higher than that. Professor Carl Stormer, of the University of Oslo, is the world's leading expert on the Northern Lights. He has studied them over a period of 25 years. He has taken hundreds of photographs, and has estimated the height of some streamers as a little more than 600 miles.

If Stormer's estimate is correct, it would seem to prove that the air around the earth rises to a height of over 600 miles. The theory held by scientists is that the lights can exist only inside the earth's atmosphere.

In carrying on his work, Professor Stormer often works with a companion who stays at a distance of 20 or 25 miles from him. They talk to each other with the help of head-telephones, and at the same instant both take pictures of an aurora in a certain part of the sky. Later they compare their photographs. Since they know the angles at which the pictures were taken, and other facts, they are able to figure the heights and sizes of the auroras.

Charlie Yates will be Atlanta's chief threat in the Southern Amateur tournament next week at Charlotte, N. C. It was learned last night.

Yates failed to qualify for the National Open last week and decided to compete in the Southern and continue practice for the National Amateur late in the summer.

Crackers Rally in Twelfth Inning of Nightcap To Prolong Thrilling Struggle at Poncey.

By JACK TROY.

Atlanta and Nashville fought 22 rounds to a draw yesterday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park. If it had lasted any longer, the plan was to let them finish it in Frank Speer's wrestling ring.

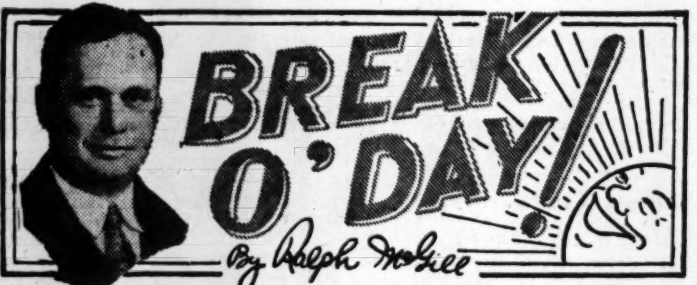

They squared off at 2 o'clock and it was after 7 and long after sundown that they finally finished.

The Vols took advantage of poor Cracker fielding and lax relief pitching to win the first game, 8 to 5. The second game went 13 innings, with Atlanta winning on Punch 'Em Paul Richards' single, 4 to 3.

Bobby Durham, was the losing

Vanderbilt's Ranger showed her heels to both Yankee and Rainbow today winning easily in the concluding race of the opening trial series.

CRACKERS ERR. Cracker errors had accounted Continued on Second Sports Page.

Word that Dizzy Dean had beat Carl Hubbell and held the Giants to three hits had the stands buzzing out at Ponce de Leon park yesterday.

Said Rudy Huswit, Brooklyn scout: "He's quite a pitcher. And a lot of this publicity stuff is not really Dizzy Dean. It's exaggerated."

Said Tommy Leach, Boston Bees scout: "I'll bet they had a crowd."

Said Jim Lindsey, Cracker pitcher, nursing a broken thumb: "Any time Dizzy gets on a spot he pitches himself off."

People on street cars going home last night were talking—Dizzy Dean.

And the 55,577 people he drew to the ball game yesterday, the people who would not have come had he not been pitching, more than paid his salary for the year. Which may give an idea of just how valuable Dean is to baseball.

Not only is he valuable to his own club, but he is, like Ruth, an asset to all other clubs in the National league.

The ex-Arkansas cotton picker who became wealthy because he could throw a baseball as well or better than anyone else in baseball, is very much of a crack-pot; very much of an egotist; but there is no way to laugh off the fact—even with laughing gas—that he is quite a pitcher.

He may have deserved suspension from baseball; he may have denied his own words—but the fact remains that he is an artist with that baseball.

Holding the Giants to three hits—giving up no bases on balls—and allowing no earned runs—that's pitching.

And Jim Lindsey was right, Ole Diz pitches himself off the spot. He pitched himself off one immediately after he had punched a sports writer. And yesterday he pitched himself off the "spot" created by the latest row.

There may be a diversity of opinion about Old Diz. But on one subject there is a unanimity of opinion—he can throw that baseball.

RUDY HUSWIT SUPPORTS LEACH.

Having lost Rudy Huswit, Brooklyn scout, in the stands on Tuesday evening, it was a pleasure to find him yesterday along with Tommy Leach, former Pirate and now scout for the Boston Bees, and the resplendent, shimmering, iridescent Scotty Chestnut, one-time umpire.

"Saw where you had the story from Tommy Leach about Hans Wagner being the greatest ball player of all time," he said. "I want to subscribe to that."

Tommy Leach grinned. He and Huswit and Wagner had been contemporaries in the National league.

"Cobb was one of the greatest. There's no argument about that. But to me Wagner was the greatest. I saw him play the outfield and the infield and he was great at any place. He could have pitched or caught."

"They say Cobb's records were greater, and they were. But Honus was never a record player. He was a team man. He didn't pay any attention to records."

"He sure didn't," said Tommy.

"You know one thing about the Dutchman that made him the greatest infielder? His arms. All the rest of us fellows playing the infield had to bend over after ground balls. But not the Dutchman. He'd come charging in all bent over and with those long arms he'd be in perfect position to scoop up the ball and throw it. He was a marvel."

Huswit came to the Southern league in 1911 after an injury with St. Louis. Otto Jordan injured him in Atlanta and he quit for the rest of the season and joined Louisville the next year.

He took Ralph West from the Crackers. "I think maybe we can give him a lot of work he couldn't get here and make a pitcher of him. It's a break for West."

12-Game Trip — Only Five Hurlers

The Crackers have departed on a 12-game road trip—with only five pitchers.

They are Bobby Durham, Jim Trexler, Bill Beckman, Gordon Maltzberger and Lawrence Miller. Emil Leonard was left behind in a hospital. And the report is that his trouble is being caused by more than one kidney stone.

Lindsey's right thumb is fractured. The big hope is that John Michaels will be able to pitch during the trip. The slim left-hander has been showing marked improvement in practice. His arm seems okay.

If Michaels is able to pitch, it will shed some light in a peculiarly dark situation.

EWINGS GUESTS IN 'LOSERS PAY'

Charlie Ewing and his mates were guests of Dr. M. D. Huff and his golf team Wednesday night at the Druid Hills Golf Club, following an afternoon of golf.

Ewing's team defeated the Club President's team, 28 to 18, in one of the most successful "losers pay" dinner tournaments ever held at the club.

It was the opening of a series of similar events to be staged regularly through the summer months.

A golf tournament, fish fry, swimming party and dance was discussed for an early date, probably on Saturday afternoon. The fish fry and tourney will be held in connection with the weekly blind bogey, should plans of the entertainment committee be completed.

BUFORD, WARREN TO PLAY TONIGHT

BUFORD, Ga., June 9.—Warren and Buford will renew their baseball wars at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night when Warren, of Atlanta, plays Buford under the lights here. It will be the second night game for Buford, who Tuesday night defeated Canton.

Buford holds a three to one edge in victories over Warren.

The teams will play Friday night on the Warren Field on Fair street, in the sixth of 14 contests to be played between the two teams this year.

Tom Harper, who beat Buford in the first game of the series some time ago, will pitch for Warren, with Cleo Jeter or Lefty Gene Nix most likely to hurl for the north Georgia nine. Lefty Eldson will hurl for Warren in the Friday night game, opposing Grady Bassett.

Black Crackers Play Baron Club Tonight

Birmingham's Black Barons will be at Ponce de Leon park tonight at 8:30 o'clock to play the Atlanta Black Crackers in their first night game of the season. The Barons have a strong club.

The Black Crackers have played 39 games this season, won 33 and lost four.

Armond Leonard Sampson, manager of the Crackers, has his nine in tip-top condition, and hopes to play a great game against the Barons.

M. Schaine, owner of the Black Crackers, states that his boys will be to win and that will be no letting down from start to finish.

Snead and Armour Betting Favorites

Drenched Course Favors Such Heavy Hitters as Picard, Nelson, Laffoon, Guldahl.

By ALAN GOULD.

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., June 9.—(P)—The weatherman tossed a big wet blanket of rain over final preparations today for the opening round of gunfire in the battle of Oakland Hills.

Neither the all-day downpour nor the low visibility, however, obscured the likelihood that the 41st United States open golf championship, starting tomorrow, will be another free-for-all shotmaking scramble.

Made up of 167 assorted shotmakers at the latest checkup, survivors of country-wide eliminations, the all-star field faced a rugged scoring fight for the title, as well as fame, fortune and fares to Europe for the quartet of professionals landing the remaining places on the American Ryder cup team. The latest withdrawal was George Von Elm, of Los Angeles, 1931 runner-up.

Eleventh-hour encouragement for the rain-bound golfing forces came from the United States Golf Association which announced, through President John G. Jackson, that the foot-high rough would be cut to less hazardous proportions on a half dozen holes.

"The rough will be shortened in a half dozen places, where the fairways have been narrowed," said President Jackson.

Prospects that the course will play "slow," as a result of today's steady rain, favored the chances of the big hitters and accounted for the fact that most clubhouse betting installed such clouters as Henry Picard, Bryon Nelson, Ky Laffoon, Slammin' Sam Snead and

Ralph Guldahl among the top choices.

NONE EVER WON.

None of these sharpshooters ever has won the open and Snead, the winter circuit sensation, is making his "freshman" start, but they rate right along with Light-horse Harry Cooper, twice the runner-up; silver-thatched Tommy Armour, the local sentiment favorite, and Champion Tony Manero as the players to be most keenly watched.

Rival bookmakers made Snead and Armour the betting choices, at respective odds of 8 to 1 and 10 to 1, but the professional rail-

PITTMAN TO FIGHT MITCHELL ELECTION

Incumbent Hints of Another Contest Over Cherokee Judgeship.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., June 9.—Official tabulation of votes in counties of the Cherokee circuit today brought from Judge Claude C. Pittman an indication that he will continue his fight against relinquishing the bench to John C. Mitchell, unopposed candidate in the Tuesday primary.

Tabulation today showed that Mitchell received 440 votes of the total 1,995 cast in Bartow county, 649 of the 1,750 cast in Gordon county, and 600 of the 1,200 cast in Whitfield county.

Pittman's Statement.
Judge Pittman, after reviewing returns from the circuit, issued the following statement:

"My attorneys have advised me all along that since the supreme court has passed upon this matter, and agreed that under the law and supreme court decisions, an election at this time to select a judge of the superior court of the heretofore circuit was illegal."

"The people themselves, having been given an opportunity to pass upon the issue, have refused to give anything like a majority of their vote to John C. Mitchell. As an example of what I mean, in my home county of Bartow, he received only 448 votes out of 1,995 cast. Reports from all counties in the Cherokee circuit, with the possible exception of Dade, also indicate that a majority of voters have scratched the name of John C. Mitchell."

"However, in the face of this manifest will of the people, I have been informed a commission will be issued for another contest, which I expect to defend to the best of my ability with the aid of able counsel."

Election's Legality.

Judge Pittman, who holds the bench at present, refused to recognize the election as a proper one for filling what the state democratic executive committee said was a vacancy.

He said prior to the election he did not intend to relinquish the bench to Mitchell—only candidate for the office—and Mitchell declared he expected to have to institute quo warranto proceedings in an effort to gain the office.

Pittman was defeated for reelection last year by J. H. McFarland, who died shortly after being chosen for the office.

When Pittman's elected term expired January 1, former Governor Talmadge appointed William A. Ingram to succeed him. But Pittman declined to turn the office over to Ingram, who brought court proceedings to remove him.

Claim Held Justified.

The state supreme court ruled Pittman's claim to the office was justified, since he was elected until his successor should be "elected and qualified." McFarland did not qualify for office, the court said.

In making its ruling, the court held no vacancy existed on the bench subject to appointment by the governor.

Pittman's contention is that if no vacancy existed earlier in the year, none exists now and the election is of no effect.

Both sides expect the case to reach the supreme court, which previously declined to rule when a vacancy would exist in the circuit.

DORV ROCHE WINS SENSATIONAL GO WITH IRISH STAR

Dan O'Connor, Subbing for Theze, Makes Hit at Ball Park.

When Louie Theze was suddenly called to St. Louis where his wife is ill, Frank Speer moved a young red-headed Irishman, Dan O'Connor, up from the opening bout to the main event against Dorv Roche at the ball park last night and the makeshift lineup produced one of the cleverest matches of the season.

O'Connor, a newcomer here and fast for his weight, gave Roche the battle of his life in a nip-and-tuck duel that was anybody's match right down to the smashing and spectacular finish. In fact, many of the ringsiders were convinced that O'Connor did not lose that third fall at all. Doc Lanford, referee, said he was down for the required three seconds.

O'Connor is a young wrestler from the old school. He can hammer lock and arm lock and Roche will vouch for that. Danny held an arm lock on Roche for seven minutes before the latter surrendered the first fall in 14 minutes. Roche applied a punishing arm lock to even matters in eight minutes.

The third fall produced a new action with the crowd on its feet, convinced that first and then the other man had won. Roche was flat on his back for a second at least five times, as was O'Connor, before Lanford ruled the red-head was finally down. O'Connor made a hit and will be welcomed back.

Juan Humberto, of Mexico, the former fighter, had too many guns for Abe Rothberg in the semi-final, wallouping the Jewish matman in two out of three falls.

Tiny Ruff, the referee-grappler, subbed for O'Connor in the first bout and did well, but not well enough, being pinned by the Russian, Pete Nenoff, in 16 minutes.

FLORIDAN ACCUSED AS AIDE TO KARPIS

MIAMI, Fla., June 9.—William Bryan Bolton, who pleaded guilty to complicity in the Edward G. Bremer kidnapping, named Joseph H. Adams today as the Karpis-Barker gang's contact man here.

Adams, manager of El Comodoro hotel, and Hendry (Duke) Randall, an employee, are being tried on charges of harboring Alvin Karpis and his mob while they were sought for the Bremer kidnapping.

Women's Tourney Set at Piedmont

Another of the weekly one day tournaments for members of the Piedmont Park Women's Golf association will be played at 9 o'clock this morning on the Piedmont Park course.

There will be prizes for low gross and low net scorers. Every woman golfer in the city is invited to participate in today's tourney.

Dixsteel Defeats Exposition Mills

Dixsteel defeated the Exposition Cotton Mill nine Tuesday afternoon, 9 to 3. Both teams played ragged ball at times and several of the runs were unearned.

JACKET, BULLDOG ATHLETES LEAVE

ATHENS, Ga., June 9.—Peped up by a light workout in the morning Forrest "Spec" Towns, Maurice Green and Bob Packard, accompanied by Coach H. J. Stegeman, leave early Thursday afternoon to bear Georgia's banners in the N. C. A. A. track meet at Berkeley, Cal., June 8 and 9.

They will be joined in Atlanta by Chick Aldridge, two miler, and Charlie Belcher, quarter miler, both of Georgia Tech.

Packard will have the best wishes of his arch rival as he runs the 100 and 220 in the meet. Dixsteel's lineup was patched up due to several of the regulars being out of the city.

DODGING OF TAXES IS HIT BY MORGAN IN NEW STATEMENT

Noted Financier Says His Remarks on Arrival in U.
S. Were Misinterpreted.

NEW YORK, June 9.—(P)—J. P. Morgan today declared himself opposed to "tax dodging or tax evasion," and said his remarks on taxation, made upon his arrival from Europe on Monday, had been misinterpreted by "some people."

"I certainly have no sympathy with tax-dodging or tax evasion and had no thought of defending such practices," the financier said.

Morgan's Statement.
A statement, issued by Morgan from his summer home on Long Island, follows:

"My interview on shipboard with newspapermen last Monday took place before I had seen President Roosevelt's message on income tax evasion, with Secretary Morgenthau's letter. I am surprised at the interpretation that some people seem to have put on my off-hand remarks, for I certainly have no sympathy with tax-dodging or tax evasion and had no thought of defending such practices. What I feel strongly is that when a taxpayer has complied with all the terms of the law, he should not be held up to obloquy for not having paid more than he owed."

The financier, who returned from Europe only last Monday, made a vigorous defense of methods of tax avoidance that are with in present law in an interview with ship news reporters before his vessel docked.

"Insulting" Assailed.
"If the government objects to tax evasion it should change the laws which can be done by congress, but the taxpayers must not be insulted," he said, evidently referring to the President's message to congress on the subject.

It is the business of taxpayers to stay within the laws and not to seek to rectify legal inadequacies by individual overpayment, he said, adding:

"Congress should know how to levy taxes, and if it doesn't know how to collect them, then a man is a fool to pay the taxes."

"If stupid mistakes are made it is up to congress to rectify them, and not for us taxpayers to do so."

HAUPTMANN'S WIDOW WILL VISIT GERMANY

NEW YORK, June 9.—(P)—Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, whose husband, Bruno Richard, was executed for the kidnap-murder of the Lindbergh baby, will sail tomorrow for her native Germany to spend the summer.

She has booked passage on the liner Bremen, and will be accompanied by her four-year-old son, Mannfried.

She plans to visit Hauptmann's mother and her own parents in Germany, and will return to New York in the fall.

OFFICE MANAGERS ELECT ATLANTAN

Gordon B. Brooke Elected to President's Chair.

Gordon B. Brooke, assistant secretary of the Retail Credit Company, has been elected president of the National Office Management Association, now in session in Chicago, it was announced yesterday.

Brooke was first vice president of the association last year and for several years has been a member of the board of directors. The organization was formed in 1919 under the name of the National Association of Office Managers. The name was changed in 1929 to the present title.

Many of the nation's leading executives are members of the organization.

Traffic Reform To Relieve Jam Goes in Effect

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday signed three measures passed Monday by city council and designed to relieve traffic congestion in the heart of the city. The measures, effective at once, were among the first on which he has acted since council adjourned.

Left-hand turns will be barred at the intersection of Peachtree street with Ellis, Cain and Harris streets.

Nonparking will be enforced on Edgewood from Ivy to Courtland and on Ivy from Decatur to Baker streets between the hours of 7 and 9 a. m. and 4 and 6 p. m.

As the mayor signed, he appealed to citizens to co-operate with authorities and give the ordinances a fair trial in order to determine their effectiveness.

They were urged by the traffic bureau of the police department to relieve traffic congestion at the Peachtree and Baker bottleneck.

DRY WEATHER AIDS COTTON AND CORN

Other State Crops Stand in Need of Rain.

Cotton and corn made good progress during the week, but nearly all other crops over half the state are in need of rain, the weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture reported yesterday.

The bureau's weekly review stated that while large areas have become too dry for good growth of most crops, there have been no serious effects as yet. Southwestern counties had heavy showers within the past few days.

Chopping of cotton was completed over a large part of the state. Early cotton in southern counties is coming into bloom. Wheat and oats are ripening near the mountain sections and threshing is well advanced in the middle and southern parts.

The week was too dry for tobacco around Valdosta, the review said, but generally favorable elsewhere.

Snap beans, okra and peppers are nearly ready for market. Uneeda peaches, tomatoes and squash already are moving in quantity.

WOMEN IN PRISON ENGAGE IN FIGHT

Principal in Famous Baby
Case Is Pummeled.

ST. LOUIS, June 9.—(P)—Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, principal in the "gift of God" baby case, has a bruised face as the result of what Edward G. O'Mara, city jail warden, said was a "personal remark" she made to two other women prisoners yesterday.

As a result of the altercation, Warden O'Mara said he is considering disciplining the red-headed prisoner. The punishment probably will be forbidding her visitors, the warden said.

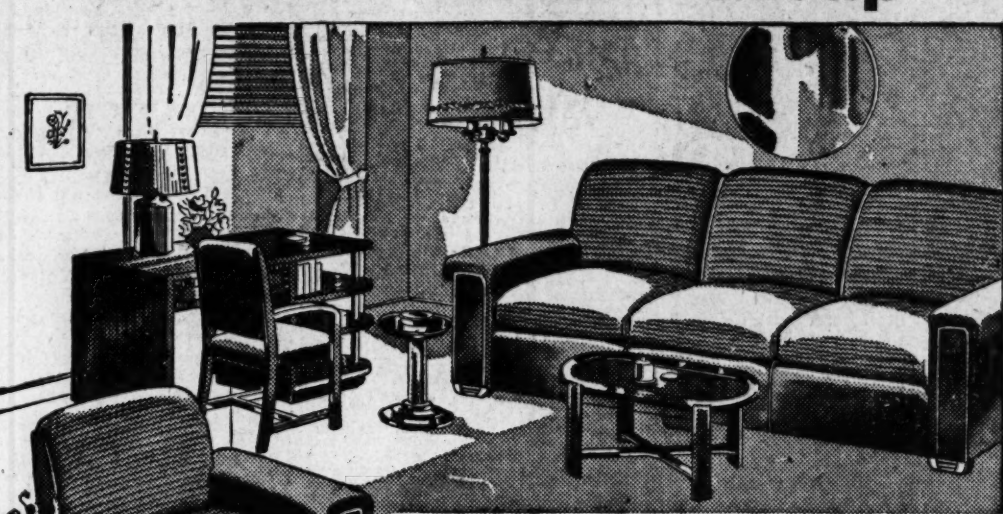

The remark O'Mara said brought about the trouble was directed at two women who each weigh about 300 pounds, Mrs. Mildred Ford and Mrs. Thelma Ford, who are not related.

Mrs. Muench is awaiting transfer to the federal women's reformatory at Alderson, W. Va., to serve her 10-year term on a mail fraud charge of which she was convicted in connection with the baby case.
